

No Say for Owner-Electors

B.C. Forcing Sewer Action

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

New legislation to force municipalities throughout B.C. to install adequate sewage treatment facilities without seeking consent of owner-electors will be introduced at the next session, the government announced Friday.

Coupled with the announcement was a strong indication that new and equally tough air pollution controls are also on the government's legislative program for the session beginning late in January.

Greater Victoria is expected to be among the first, if not the very first, to feel the effects of the latest edict. Government spokesmen said here local municipalities could be required within two years to start construction of a new sewer system costing an estimated $23,000,000 between now and 1985.

In a joint announcement, Health Minister Wesley Black and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said the following steps will be taken in the campaign against water pollution:

● A bill is to go before the legislature next session giving the Pollution Control Board power to order municipalities to provide minimum levels of sewage treatment.

● Any municipality receiving such notice will be required to submit, within six months, engineering plans for sewage treatment.

● The municipality can be ordered to undertake the treatment project within 18 months of such plans being approved by the Pollution Control Board.

● Starting immediately, each municipality is to notify Mr. Campbell of the details of current methods of sewage treatment it uses, along with any current proposals for upgrading its present treatment methods.

At the same time, Mr. Black announced new regulations approved by the cabinet setting health and safety regulations for hotel and motel swimming pools and Continued on Page 3

'Probe Youth Corps'

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Friday the Company of Young Canadians should be investigated so that it does not become an agency for the propagation of Communism or Communist philosophy.

He said there are dedicated young men and women in the Company but that leftwingers with the benediction of the Communist party are infiltrating it.

"Surely Canadians don't have to pay taxes to expand the opportunities for Communists to bring about changes in society," he told reporters.

'HOLDS GUN'

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated his call for reconvening of Parliament to deal with the Great Lakes shipping strike by the Seafarers' International Union. SIU President Leonard (Red) McLaughlin "holds a gun at the head of Canada," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker twitted Prime Minister Pearson for his phrase "I see nothing to be disturbed about" concerning the Paris announcement of increased French economic aid to Quebec.

He said "I am not disturbed" is the embodiment of the attitude of the Liberal government toward high taxation, uncontrolled expenditures, the sea-

Baby 'Weaned Away' From Heroin Habit

LONDON (UPI)—A London court was told Friday a four-month-old baby, the child of a convicted drug addict, was being "weaned away from heroin" by authorities.

"This is a shocking case," said a probation officer when Miss Rose Barker, 26, appeared in court on a charge of unlawfully possessing some 40 heroin tablets.

British Expecting Murder Campaign

HONG KONG (AP)—British colonial officials said today they expect a sustained assassination campaign will be waged by Communist Chinese terrorists who boasted they burned to death an anti-Communist radio comedian.

The comedian, whose specialty was ridiculing the Communists, died Friday after terrorists poured gasoline on him and set it afire.

The day also saw more bombs exploded in the Commu-

SPY CASE: SOLDIERS ACCUSED IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two U.S. Army sergeants have been accused of conspiring to hand over U.S. secrets to the Soviet Union, U.S. officials disclosed Friday night.

The two were identified as Sgt. Leonard J. Safford of Chillum, Md., and Sgt. Ulysses L. Harris of Neptune, N.J.

Charges announced by the U.S. defence department linked the two men with Nikolai F. Popov, listed as a first secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, and with Anatoly Tikhonovich Kireyev, identified by the state department as with the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

The state department said Popov left the U.S. Aug. 22 and Kireyev July 31. No reason was given by the Soviet embassy for their departure. Both had valid visas for return to the U.S. but the visas have been cancelled. The Soviet government was told both men are not eligible to return.

Power Struggle 'Cannibalistic'

BOSTON (UPI)—An insight into the power struggle between American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell and his accused assassin was disclosed Friday in a taped interview with Rockwell.

See also Page 3

Gordon Hall, a Boston-based lecturer on extremist groups, taped the interview with Rockwell in September, 1963. Hall asked Rockwell about John Patler, now accused in Rockwell's death but then a top aide who had recently accused his Nazi boss of being a "liberal" in a magazine.

Patler published called Kill.

Rockwell said of Patler: "A political guerrilla band is what we are. And our support is almost zero. We have to just live off the land."

"And under such conditions, the struggle for power becomes almost cannibalistic. And yet what happened is Patler rebelled against the leadership—he thought he could do it better."

"He went up to New York and tried and he fell on his face. And he has written me and he is most humble."

"He's a very fine member right now."

That was in 1963, and hardly the end of the power struggle in Rockwell's guerrillas. At the time of Rockwell's assassination, Patler had been expelled from the party.

Rockwell said he was only a symbol for the party and that his own death would not affect the progress of the organization.

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)

George Lincoln Rockwell, hate-peddling leader of the small but noisy American Nazi Party, was slain by a sniper Friday. Police arrested an ousted party official and charged him with murder.

Rockwell, whose principal hate targets were Negroes and Jews, was gunned down in his car outside a laundromat in a small shopping centre across the street from the party's headquarters in this Washington, D.C., suburb.

Within an hour, police arrested John Patler, 29, a former U.S. marine who until early this year was a Nazi captain—fourth-ranking party official.

$30,000 BAIL

He was jailed and bail set at $30,000, pending a court appearance Monday.

It was reported that Patler had been active in the party for about six years. After he and Rockwell quarrelled about undisclosed points in party policy this spring, this report said, Patler was kicked out of the party. Police Inspector Walter E. Bell said Patler left the party in January.

DIED INSTANTLY

Acquaintances said Patler is an artist who had done illustrations for the party's magazine. Police said he is married, unemployed and a student who "didn't say where he was studying."

Rockwell was hit in the head and chest by two bullets which pierced the windshield of his car. He apparently died instantly, his body toppling from the car's right door partly onto the parking lot.

LEFT CLOTHES

The shots were fired shortly before noon from a 15-foot roof some 25 feet from where the 48-year-old tall, dark, athletic, fly built Rockwell sat, officials said. He had just left his dirty clothes at a coin-operated automatic laundry.

"I haven't done nothing—this is a nightmare," the arrested man shouted as police led him from the Arlington County Courthouse to the nearby police station for questioning.

MAN PICKED UP

A real estate man, J. W. Hancock, told reporters he heard two shots—then the sound of running footsteps across the roof of the centre. Rockwell's car, he said, continued several feet after the gunshots and struck a parked auto.

Several persons gave Arlington police descriptions of the man they said was the sniper. On the basis of those descriptions, Arlington policemen cruising in a squad car picked up a man less than a mile away within an hour of the shooting.

U.S. NAVY PILOT

Rockwell's party's expressed policy was to deport Negroes to Africa, to liquidate Jews by sterilization and expropriation of their property and to hang traitors.

A native of Bloomington, Ill., Rockwell was divorced several years ago. He attended Brown University and was a U.S. Navy fighter plane pilot during the Second World War.

Police said there had been earlier attempts on his life.

Viet Voting Violations 'Could Lead to Blood'

SAIGON (UPI)—Two civilian presidential candidates warned Friday that if Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky's government does not stop alleged campaign violations they will stage demonstrations that could lead to bloodshed.

Ky replied that if there was any proof against "bad election officials" he would cut off their heads.

BEATEN UP

The renewed charges against Ky's government came as a candidate for the senate, which also will be elected during the Sept. 3 presidential balloting, was reported beaten up by three Vietnamese soldiers while he was campaigning in Quang Nam province.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, presidential candidate on the military ticket with Ky, announced that 50 military officers, including "some generals," will be tried on charges of inefficiency and corruption. He said the announcement at this time was "only a coincidence" and had nothing to do with the election.

Other developments:

● U.S. Ambassador Ellisworth Bunker imposed a curfew from 9 p.m. Sept. 2 until 4 a.m. Sept. 4 on all American civilians and servicemen in Saigon to limit the possibility of Viet Cong terror attacks during the election and to avoid any appearance of American interference with the balloting.

● Barry Zortman, the U.S. mission's information and psychological warfare director, said that a "reasonably fair" election is "critical" to South Vietnam and the United States. He said that Sept. 3 would not bring about the "birth of a perfect Jeffersonian democracy here, but the election is the freest this country has ever known."

● Australia announced it would send a four-man team to observe the election headed by Sir Allen Brown, Australian ambassador to Japan.

There is little reason to believe that anything short of a sustained and systematic pounding of the population centres would force the North Vietnamese into submission, McNamara said, adding that no one has suggested such drastic measures.

Canada Assistance Plan

They're All Signed Up

OTTAWA (CP)—All provinces now have signed agreements with the federal government to participate in the Canada Assistance Plan, Health Minister MacEachen announced Friday.

Quebec, the last province to come to terms with Ottawa on the plan's integration of shared-cost programs for public assistance, signed Aug. 21.

The plan provides payments to the needy aged, blind, disabled and unemployed, to needy mothers and their families, and to children in the care of child welfare authorities.

Provinces, which administer the programs, have an option of replacing separate programs with single, comprehensive schemes embracing those in need.

The agreements are retroactive to April 1, 1966.

The plan also provides for federal assistance to health care costs. These may include any or all of medical, surgical, obstetrical, optical, dental and nursing services, drugs, dentures and eyeglasses.

Since Parliament approved the plan last year Quebec, Ontario and Saskatchewan have extended health care benefits under programs covered by the plan.

Mr. MacEachen's statement said the new preventive social services scheme in Alberta will be another program qualifying for 50-50 federal-provincial sharing.

Bombing Just Supplement, He Says

McNamara at Odds with Military?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defence Secretary McNamara, defending the U.S. administration's selective bombing tactics against North Vietnam, said Friday he still is convinced the war must be won by ground troops in South Vietnam.

The final decision in this conflict will not come until we and our allies prove to North Vietnam she cannot win in the South," he said.

There is little reason to believe that anything short of a sustained and systematic pounding of the population centres would force the North Vietnamese into submission, McNamara said, adding that no one has suggested such drastic measures.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) said that if McNamara is right then his top military leaders are wrong. The military chiefs have told the Senate group that recent increased bombing is hurting North Vietnam.

"If the position as presented by the secretary this morning is right, I believe the United States should get out of Vietnam at the earliest possible time, and on the best possible basis," Symington said, "because with his premises, there would appear no chance of a true 'success'."

McNamara took issue with Symington's statement that the defence secretary is at odds with the military chiefs.

Immigrant Finds Friends in Need

GOOD JOE AWARDS: There are dozens of complaints who knock public servants and the like, so try this one on for size.

A young California professor, Gean Cermakian, got a job teaching at Laval University.

He came up to this city and went through customs and immigration as a landed immigrant.

During the course of shuffling papers and fumbling for his documents he dropped a bit of paper.

The paper happened to be a cheque for $2,000 which accounted for the young man's entire savings.

Mr. Cermakian did not know he had left his cheque behind but travelled on to Vancouver ignorant of his loss.

Customs officer Bing Fulthorp found the cheque and began a search for the professor.

It would have been easier to have just mailed the cheque on to Laval but the customs man thought the immigrant would be out of his mind with grief as soon as he discovered the loss.

With the help of Canadian National staff Edith Young it was discovered the professor intended to ship his car east by rail.

After a bit of detective work it was found that Mr. Cermakian was staying at the Bayshore. When he was told of the find he reached in his pocket and flipped.

He got his money and Edith Young and Bing Fulthorp got the satisfaction of knowing there is one immigrant who will never forget the kindness of two Victorians.

MORE GOOD JOES: This column is full of goodwill today. An all-out effort is being made locally to form a branch of the Variety Club. It will be limited to 50 members.

The boys are concerned with making sure the city does its bit for the Variety Telethon which last year raised $70,000 to help retarded children.

Fred Beale, Barney Simmons and John Kostuk are looking after the membership drive.

B.C. Tel's man-about-town Glyn Jones is in charge of arrangements for a direct line from here to the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse where the Oct. 7 and 8 show will be staged.

Headliners this year include Louis Armstrong and a list of talent that will make the Ed Sullivan Show look like amateur night.

Bill Thomas' Notebook

Saturday

TOP SECRET: The B.C. Research Council has some hush-hush projects, but the security stuff seems to have spilled over into the mailing room.

Nobody has told them times change, people retire and offices move. A letter arrived Wednesday for Sandra M. Graves, Editor of the Colonist.

It was addressed to 1271 Broad Street. Sandy Graves retired in 1960 and the Colonist moved its office in 1951. Some day they will make this discovery in Vancouver.

DOG DAYS: Bill Tindall of the Better Business Bureau gets his share of problems. Sometimes they have a tinge of humor.

A recent complaint went like this. A newcomer phoned a pet shop to inquire about buying a French poodle. The shop gave her the number of a kennel to call. Three times she called to ask the price of poodles, and got an extremely rude reply and a slammed-down phone.

The dog fancier called Mr. Tindall and he found the kennel in question specialized in raising Great Danes.

Sewer Action

minimum standards for septic tanks.

The new septic tank standards mainly affect unorganized areas in the province which fall directly under provincial jurisdiction but, a spokesman said, will apply to septic tanks within municipalities as well.

Mr. Campbell said it isn't the government's intention to wipe out septic tanks ("there's nothing wrong with a well-installed septic tank") in urban areas. In some areas these are more desirable than other forms of disposal, he said.

The government's action, according to the ministers who made Friday's announcement, reflects a concern for lack of treatment facilities indicated by last month's report on pollution on the Fraser River "and many others."

The new policy, said Mr. Campbell, is designed to protect the quality of water in provincial water courses. Apart from isolated "pockets of concern," including the lower reaches of the Fraser, there is no pollution problem in B.C. approaching the magnitude of the one on the lower St. Lawrence, he said.

Mr. Campbell added: "If we don't start now, we'll find ourselves in future always trying to catch up, and that's no good."

He said the sewer works resulting from PCB orders to proceed will be the first projects of such magnitude to come under new provisions in the Municipal Act passed in 1966 and approved in principle by the legislature's municipal matters committee last spring.

These local authorities to proceed on vital sewer projects without first placing a money bylaw before the ratepayers.

Greater Victoria is the largest urban area without treatment and here the regional board has already tackled the problem on an area basis. With engineering studies already in hand it might be possible to skip the first six-month period and order a start on the actual work within 18 months of the new law becoming effective next spring.

Other major centres without treatment include New Westminster, which discharges raw sewage into the Fraser, Prince George, Nelson, Kitimat, Trail, Prince Rupert, Okanagan communities and others in the Kootenays.

Mr. Campbell was asked what financial assistance the province was prepared to give to municipalities which are ordered to install treatment plants. His reply: None.

"The federal government is already occupying this field," he said, referring to long-term federal loans for sewer projects which contain a 25-per-cent forgiveness clause.

"We only say Ottawa should occupy this field in greater depth," said Mr. Campbell. "And they should go further, putting their own financial house in order, because the present incursions by Ottawa into the money market in competition with municipalities is probably the biggest financial block to this program."

It would be most unfair, Mr. Campbell said, if provincial aid was given to some municipalities when 90 out of the 138 municipalities in the province already have some form of sewerage treatment.

No estimates exist on the approximate cost of bringing treatment in the province up to required standards but the ministers responsible said the figure would be well under $100,000,000 over a period of years.

men's strike, pensioners and the cost of living.

"It is the first time a Canadian prime minister has used a slogan you often see on bedroom doors: 'Do not disturb.'"

Mr. Diefenbaker said McGill University's High Altitude Research Project (HARP) should not have been wiped out on the say-so of Industry Minister Drury, who had taken no interest in the matter.

PUT OBJECTS IN SPACE
For another $500,000 Canada would have been able to put objects in space orbit in its Centennial Year.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government is spending $54,000,000 on a naval hydrofoil boat turned down by other countries as worthless. The hydrofoil project had originally been estimated to cost $9,000,000, he said.

HOUSING CHAOTIC
The Conservative leader said housing is in a most chaotic condition.

Joy Predicted At Nazi Death

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The heir-apparent to the leadership of the American Nazi Party said Friday he thought there would be "joy in the Jewish and Negro communities tonight" over the death of party chairman George Lincoln Rockwell.

Matt Koehl, national secretary of the American Nazi Party and its No. 2 man, spoke to newsmen shortly after Rockwell was shot.

ARMED GUARDS

Reporters, led past barking German Shepherd dogs and armed guards, heard Koehl say on the steps of the party's ramshackle headquarters:

"Those elements were victorious but it is a great loss to white people. He (Rockwell)

Ex-Nazi Politician Commits Suicide

HANNOVER (Reuters) — Otto Hess, a former Nazi storm trooper colonel who became a leading figure in West Germany's extreme right-wing National Democratic Party, has committed suicide by slashing his right wrist, police said Friday.

Hess, 58, was found dying Thursday evening by a boarder at his home near here.

Waldemar Scheutz, a presidential member of his party with Hess, said the ex-colonel had undertaken heavy financial commitments to help business friends. This had threatened his financial existence. There was no political reason for his death, he said.

'GREAT TRAGEDY'

Adolf von Thadden, the party's vice-chairman and driving force, said: "This is a great tragedy. It is due to short-term difficulties which could have been overcome, coinciding with depression."

Hess, a building contractor, was one of the most controversial figures in the National Democratic party business at his Nazi past.

He joined the Nazi party in 1930 and became a "gaurer-ner," a district orator of the party.

He had held a seat in the Lower Saxony state parliament can't be replaced. He was one of the greatest living Americans."

A police escort for newsmen along the 75-yard lane leading to the two-story white frame house that is party headquarters was arranged after one reporter was chased off at gunpoint.

The incident occurred at a metal barrier at the head of the weed-lined lane when Nazi Party lieutenant Robert Bruce came at a newsmen with his 30-calibre carbine at the ready.

FAIR OF SIGNS

Moments later, police escorted a small party back up the lane through trees posted with hand-painted signs reading, Survivors Will Be Prosecuted and White People Welcome.

The signs were decorated with skulls and crossbones and with swastikas.

Floodlights also lined the lane to the headquarters. They were put up two months ago after Rockwell said a gunman took a shot at him. At that time, Rockwell asked for a gun permit, but Arlington authorities turned him down.

GATHERING SOON

Koehl said a new leader would probably be selected at a gathering of American Nazis. The 32-year-old native of Milwaukee declined to say if he would be in the running.

Koehl said Rockwell told him Friday morning he wanted to borrow the party's car.

"We let him use it and he said, 'I will be back in a minute,'" Koehl said.

NO INDICATION

Rockwell always recognized there was a possibility he would be assassinated, Koehl said.

"But when he left this morning there was no indication that this would happen."

Rockwell's two dogs, J. Edgar and Sexy, lounged around the front porch.

here since last June, when the new party gained 10 seats.

He was a prominent supporter of von Thadden, leader of the extremist faction which toppled party Chairman Fritz Thielens last March, and became one of a three-man council to lead the party after the coup.

UN Blunderbuss

THE UNITED NATIONS is apparently determined to continue its blundering ways over South West Africa. Having rejected the findings of the International Court of Justice on the matter, it has now appointed its own commissioner and council "to deal with the issue of race differentiation and to bring self-determination to the people of the Territory."

The make-up of the new South West Africa Council—which will operate from New York—may be described as interesting, if not amusing, in relationship to its terms of reference.

The council chairman, to be known as Commissioner for South West Africa, is a Greek, while council members are provided by Nigeria, India, Pakistan, Turkey, Guyana, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Egypt, Indonesia, Colombia and Chile.

It may be considered that Secretary General U Thant showed something less than perspicacity in choosing a Greek diplomat for the top job at this unhappy time in Hellenic history. Apart from his worries about things at home, the commissioner might find his new job somewhat hampered by the presence of the council member from Turkey, particularly if they start relating the question of race differentiation to the situation in Cyprus.

Then of course there are the representatives from India and Pakistan serving on the council. Their attitudes toward racialism, tribalism and self-determination in their own countries will be a great help to settling the South West Africa problem—providing they can settle the same differences between themselves and in their own nations.

Nigeria's contribution might also be useful in this same field, certainly as useful as Egypt's in any case. Guyana's continuing experience in racial conflict may be as helpful as Zambia's publicly expressed opinion that self-determination can best be served by a totalitarian system.

The value of Indonesia's representative is a little more difficult to assess at the moment as his own government is still in a state of ferment. All of which seems to leave Yugoslavia, Colombia and Chile—none of which have ever indicated the slightest interest or concern over African affairs—to carry the work load.

If the United Nations General Assembly seriously believes this council is a gun pointed at the head of South Africa it may find that it backfires the first time Mr. Thant attempts to pull the trigger.

However, whatever might be said about the new organization's propensities as a weapon it cannot be denied that it is loaded.

Attention, Please

CANADA'S ENTIRE Great Lakes fleet—181 vessels—is now strike-bound. Once again, as in the case of the dock workers strike in the St. Lawrence ports which was terminated June 16, 1966, a large part of the nation's transportation complex is paralyzed.

In the longshoremen's strike of just over a year ago, Prime Minister Lester Pearson took credit for the settlement by his direct intervention. But the 30 per cent wage increase granted by the Pearson formula at that time was widely condemned as setting a precedent of generosity the economy could not afford.

On the basis of that settlement the Seafarers' International Union appears to make its claim which, they say, would mean an increase of 27 per cent in the annual wage cost to the operators, the Canadian Lake Carriers Association.

But according to the shipowners a careful accounting shows that the actual cost increase would amount to a staggering 76.1 per cent. According to their figures, the changes sought in the working agreement would mean an increase on the "total package" ranging from a low of 150 per cent to a 236 per cent hike.

Canadian ships have to meet the competition of foreign flags with very many fewer advantages than those enjoyed by Canadian sailors. They must compete with new rail technologies represented by the unit train. The operators say they cannot afford enormously increased operation costs if they hope to stay in business.

The Canadian Marine Officers Union is asking for much the same conditions of employment as the seamen: a 40-hour week, plus the elimination of a work-spread system that keeps men on call 24 hours a day. They are not yet on strike; but they have broken off talks with the employers because they were "hopelessly deadlocked," and both sides have now agreed to ask for a federal conciliation board's ruling.

In the face of all the circumstances Ottawa's attention in this crisis is urgently required. Settlement of the dispute should be pushed on the basis of reasonable terms. For as long as this stalemate continues a multiplying part of the population is being held hostage and a widening wave of damage is being done the whole economy.

And Yet One More

THE PROVINCIAL, CIVIC and federal centennial occasions have succeeded one another in such a cluster in the last few years that perhaps for some people they begin to wear out their welcome. And Premier Bennett has already noted that there will be another to be marked in 1971, a century after British Columbia's entry into Confederation—this celebration to outdo all that have gone before.

Still it would be amiss if next spring there were not one further period of commemoration and thanksgiving among the residents of Victoria, meaning not only the city but the whole community that has spread out from the original fort.

The centenary of the landing of Sir James Douglas to establish the fort was celebrated in 1943. There was a service "largely attended" at Christ Church Cathedral; there was a cavalcade, and a centennial ball; there were street dances, and cheer-up concerts at Beacon Hill. But it was wartime, and the joy was tinged with sadness in the absence of so many Victorians.

All the more reason then why, next mid-March, the 125th anniversary of the founding of Victoria should be observed with special events at least over a brief period, in happier circumstances than prevailed a quarter-century ago.

With this in mind, it would be an appropriate time now for the municipal representatives of the capital region to set up a planning committee.

"Buddy, can you spare a million?"

Roblin Got the Kiss-of-Prairie-Death When Diefenbaker Played the Butterfly

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

POOR Duff Roblin. What did he ever do to Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker to deserve such a kiss-of-prairie-death from the Old Chief?

There was the Manitoba premier, flirting coyly with the Conservative king-makers who wanted to recruit him for what Prime Minister Lester Pearson has kidded them is their "baseball team" of nine (count 'em) leadership candidates.

Yes, there he was, young—well, a youthful looking 50, anyway—handsome (even without his Charlie Chaplin moustache), his brow adorned with the laurels of 18 successful years in provincial politics, the last nine of them as premier.

He seemed to have the talent for doing the right thing, in perhaps more important, in politics at any level, municipal, provincial or federal, of avoiding doing the wrong thing.

It got for a time to the point that he just might have stood in, doubling in the flesh, for Manitoba's famed "Golden Boy" atop the legislature in Winnipeg.

If the political halo of infallibility slipped at all, and the broad perspective of the man it was but a tiny fraction. It was when, uncaring of press and public protests, he raised his own salary from $18,500 to $25,000.

It might have been just a small regional issue had not an outraged taxpayer, name of Joseph Borowick, picketed the Manitoba legislature. No ordinary picket, he set up camp, actually, trailer, tent and all, on the steps of the provincial house, fighting a guerrilla action out onto the parking lot when he was evicted from the legislative stoop itself.

Perhaps it was then, when it became apparent that Duff Roblin could make mistakes, that John Diefenbaker began looking upon him with less than full-flavored favor.

(This business of political leaders, prime ministers and provincial premiers, raising their own salaries—and to heck with the taxpayers—has been a sore point indeed with Dief ever since Lester B. Pearson, uncaring of his protest, upped parliamentary pay from $12,000 to $18,000 plus an overflowing cornucopia of juicy fringe benefits.)

But it could have been, too, when Duff Roblin responded with less than the gratitude expected of a humble subject to Dief's monarchial offer to designate him crown prince when the Old Chief was still in the king-making position of being able to bestow the party's Blessing-from-on-High.

Again, it might just have been that Dief remembered Duff Roblin had not been among the good—men—who came—to-the-aid-of-the-Party last November when Conservative President Dalton Camp split it, head to toe, on the issue of the Old Chief's leadership.

It wasn't all that long ago, early summer, it seems, that Dalton Camp, designating Duff Roblin and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield as two of the men he'd most like to see succeed the Old Chief, made it but to Winnipeg, on what obviously was a leadership scouting expedition.

Silly thing to have done, for it presented Dief with perhaps just exactly the opening for which he had been waiting.

Up onto the platform went the Old Stager, and in one of his most accomplished dramatic performances, proceeded to do his destructive best to fix Duff Roblin's leadership clock.

Gesturing with outrageous extravagance, Dief spoke of "my old friend Dalton Camp" as a butterfly—yep, "a butterfly, flitting daintily hither and yon amid the flowers of the field searching out the ultimate in the floral exquisite."

It was a performance of magnificence, with Dief grinning in wicked exultation and fluttering his hands as if himself flitting about delicately sniffing the aroma of the leadership posies.

"And on whom do you think Dalton Camp alighted?" asked Dief, laughing, "who was the butterfly's favorite flower—why Duff Roblin!"

It hurt, for to thousands of Diefenbakers, Dalton Camp forevermore is a dirty word, and Duff Roblin would suffer grave guilt-by-association.

"Mr. Camp has other commitments," he has said hollowly hoping that nobody had seen and heard Dief's preposterous political pantomime.

How different had been Bob Stanfield's handling of the hot political potato of Dalton Camp. "Yes," he has said, "I hope I have everybody's support, including Mr. Camp's."

But then he never got the business from Dief.

I am sure that English-speaking Canadians who advocate a bilingual Canada would not do so if they had studied a political history of South Africa or compared the racial characteristics of the Boers and the French-Canadians.

In South Africa, the process of destroying the political supremacy of the English-speaking is far advanced; in Canada, it has just begun. Those who point out that Boers outnumber Britons in South Africa overlook facts which give French-Canadians a political strength out of proportion to their numbers. French-Canadians are a homogeneous racial group. English-speaking Canadians are not.

French-Canadians usually vote en bloc; English-speaking Canadians do not. Lastly, no political party can hope to govern Canada without strong support from Quebec.

The shrewd application of bilingual tests effectively altered the racial composition of the public services in South Africa. In one case out of many, an English-speaking South African applying for promotion was asked to name the bones of the hand in Afrikaans.

On several occasions, the writer has spoken to Boer policemen and railway personnel, only to find that they could not, or would not, speak English.

It was Boer determination to preserve his "separateness" that resulted in separate school systems: one for the English-speaking, the other, one in which Boer children receive a "Christian" education in their mother tongue. This system ensures that young South Africans from either stock are prevented from knowing one another, and hence have been moulded. Then it is too late.

Having regard to the emphasis which the majority of French-Canadians place upon their "special identity" and the fact that 95 per cent of them subscribe to one faith—a not insignificant power in its own right—is it not reasonable to assume that if separate French-speaking schools were to be established in all provinces outside Quebec, as has been suggested, they would also be a separate religious establishment, as in South Africa?

In such schools, language, bolstered by religion, would produce children unable or unwilling to speak English because it would not be to French-Canadian political advantage to have them do so.

Think what a political lever these growing blocks could become in the language struggle, which is really a racial struggle, in which language is used as a political weapon. The availability of an education in their own tongue might encourage Quebecers to "emigrate" to other provinces where they could now preserve their "special identity." This, I feel, would only contribute to Canada's problem, because it would establish a "Little Quebec" in every province.

Those involved in the redrafting of Canada's constitution would be well advised to remember the lesson of South Africa and the "English fact" of our living next to and trading with the U.S.A., and act accordingly.

LAST TREK

POOR COMPARISON

I am an elderly lady, English, for five generations in Quebec. I have lived a happy life among many French-Canadian friends.

I was horrified that your paper would print the ignorant article by Mr. Helling! Saying what he did, comparing the French-Canadians to U.S. Negroes!

Why there is nothing to compare! Our French element has never lived in slums, shanties, rat-ridden, etc., and the only reason they have been kept down—I would have been afraid to mention—until I read the book by Hugh MacLennan where he says the church and they alone kept the French in ignorance to suit them! It's quite different now.

Mr. Helling had no right to give such a wrong impression. I had composed a different letter to you, then it made me very pleased that you had an excellent editorial in your paper, so I just want you to know the way Mr. Helling's first article upset me.

(Miss) M. E. JOSEPH, of Quebec and Montreal

SEAT RESERVED

I was watching a National Film Board documentary the other evening in which the host, Lester Sinclair, was parading the wonders of science, that by interfering with the human genes science can create mutants to bring about a different type of human being.

Nuclear science has already produced one monstrosity that, before man has developed the required moral stature for effective control, means that he has a tiger by the tail. Now he wants to try for two by accepting this monstrosity of the biological scientist.

I wouldn't be surprised if para-psychology does not come off with a third tiger for the circus.

However of the three tigers I am betting on the para-psychologist to win because I think that it will be in the research of the mind that man's greatest progress will be made.

In the meantime I will make a reservation for a front seat on cloud nine for I think it will be a very entertaining show.

Our Readers' Views

We are considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be signed with pen-name, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

Handguns are small and concealable and for this reason lend themselves to the commission of crime. This is not true of rifles and shotguns which are used for hunting, defence against wild animals, protection of crops and the exercise of marksmanship, and which are difficult to conceal.

The registration of handguns is an onerous restriction which has been ineffective in preventing their use for criminal purposes. There is already adequate legislation, and severe penalties can be invoked, against the misuse of firearms of all types.

It is surely unthinkable that the hunters and shooters of this province, comprising a large percentage of the population, should be saddled with a measure which cannot possibly be effective for the purpose intended. I am sure that registration of rifles and shotguns will not be a popular measure with the 135,000 citizens who annually purchase firearms licences.

JOB WELL DONE

On behalf of the Metcoshin Farmers Institute and Luxton Fair Board I would like to express our thanks and appreciation to the Langford and Colwood Voluntary Fire Departments, as well as the Naval Service and B.C. Forestry Service for the tremendous effort put forth in controlling the fire originating on our property Saturday August 19.

The effort, efficiency, and co-operation shown by all personnel was terrific. It was noted with pride by all concerned as to how each department immediately responded to the command of the Langford chief. Co-operation of this kind is something of which each department and firefighter can be justly proud.

I would also like to congratulate Chief Allan LeQueune for the decision he had to make in taking his firefighters out of the area of our buildings which were already beyond saving and concentrating their efforts on saving the homes and property adjacent to the fair grounds.

Again, gentlemen, thanks for a job well done from all concerned.

"For Valour" Victoria Cross Story—Part II

Death Too Often Took the Heroes

By GERALD McNEIL

VIOLENT death is often the entry fee into the exclusive Victoria Cross club.

Of 79 Canadians who won the decoration while serving with the Canadian armed forces during the First and Second World Wars, 34 were killed in action.

Half the 16 Canadians to earn a VC during the Second World War died on the field.

In addition to the 79, the award has been won by 23 Canadians serving with the British armed forces.

The eight survivors among the Second World War recipients, plus 13 living First World War winners, today are an unobtrusive if exclusive company, a cross-Canada survey shows.

They carry lightly the coveted decoration, inscribed For Valour.

"I just tell people I won it for drinking rum," says Alex Brereton, now 74, of Elnora, Alta.

The official qualification is "conspicuous bravery or devotion to duty in the presence of the enemy."

Some of the remaining 21 survivors were maimed in earning the decoration but none has used it as a crutch.

Though some have become prominent it doesn't appear to have been a factor in building a career.

One exception is Lt.-Col. David V. Currie, 54, who in 1960 became sergeant-at-arms in the House of Commons.

Parliament has thought it fitting that the most illustrious war heroes should hold such posts and he was sought out for the job.

One of his predecessors was Milton F. Gregg, 75, who earned his VC in the First World War. Until recently, he was high commissioner to Guyana, an appointment that followed a successful political career.

Perhaps the most prominent is Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes of British Columbia, a defence minister in the Diefenbaker administration.

He earned the VC while amassing five wounds in the First World War and went on to become commander of the 1st Division during the Second World War.

Gen. Pearkes, now 79, says the VC may have helped him politically. However, it was hardly more than a high point in a long, successful military career.

Like the mechanics, ministers, businessmen, ranchers and farmers who won it, he earned his post-war way.

The 21 survivors include American William H. Metcalfe, 73, of South Portland, Me., and Dame Thomas Dineen, 74, of Grejsdal, Denmark.

Both won the VC while in Canadian uniform during the First World War. Their post-war lives are indicative of those of the others.

Dineen wound up with the Black Watch in Montreal after trying to join the French, British and American armies.

He earned the VC in 10 hours of hand-to-hand trench fighting at Parvillers, France, in 1918 during the Battle of Amiens.

Metcalfe was an American citizen, he was unable to receive military benefits from either country before that, so the VC didn't mean much in practical terms.

Now ailing and deaf, he and his wife are getting by in South Portland with the pension and U.S. social security.

He rarely talks about the VC but likes to reminisce about his Canadian buddies and see them when he can.

"People forget as the years go by," said Mrs. Metcalfe, answering questions for her deaf husband in a telephone interview.

None of the Canadian airmen or seamen who won the VC is alive but their names rank with the best in the company of 1,345 who have won the decoration in the last 113 years.

There is the late Billy Bishop of Owen Sound Ont., a First World War flying ace who shot down 22 enemy planes and two balloons. His exploits are legendary.

He became an air marshal during the Second World War when names like Andy Mynarski and Robert Gray shone.

Lieut. Gray from Nelson B.C. planned to become a doctor. He piloted his flaming aircraft until he could bomb a Japanese destroyer at point-blank range.

He died in the attack.

PO Mynarski a Winnipeg man died of burns suffered trying to rescue a rear gunner—who survived to tell the tale—in a doomed Lancaster over Cambrai, France.

The attacking British clanked out the enemy trenches, going through them from one to the other and it was Dineen's job to go first.

"I wasn't hit at all—it was extraordinary," he says. He won the French Croix-de-Guerre in the same action.

"People expect me to be something extraordinary, which I'm certainly not. They think that because you've won the Victoria Cross, you must be a special person."

"But I feel it was partly accidental. You know, there were other men there all the time and some of the others were hit and died and yet you get the medal and they get nothing."

He travelled extensively after the war, became a prosperous farmer and has written about his wartime experiences.

He looks upon Canada as his "second home," helped form a Danish-Canadian association, and now lives in retirement on a 1,400-acre farm in Denmark. He keeps actively in touch with VCs in Canada.

Metcalfe born at Talmadge Me., joined up at Fredericton in 1914 and fought with the 16th Canadian Scottish.

On foot, he guided a tank through heavy machine-gun fire to enemy trenches at Auras. He then mopped up a series of machine-gun nests alone to earn his VC.

Metcalfe a retired mechanic, struggled hard to raise his four children during the depression and only last year was given a $100 monthly pension from Canada—about $92 in U.S. money.

As an American citizen, he was unable to receive military benefits from either country before that, so the VC didn't mean much in practical terms.

Now ailing and deaf, he and his wife are getting by in South Portland with the pension and U.S. social security.

He rarely talks about the VC but likes to reminisce about his Canadian buddies and see them when he can.

"People forget as the years go by," said Mrs. Metcalfe, answering questions for her deaf husband in a telephone interview.

None of the Canadian airmen or seamen who won the VC is alive but their names rank with the best in the company of 1,345 who have won the decoration in the last 113 years.

There is the late Billy Bishop of Owen Sound Ont., a First World War flying ace who shot down 22 enemy planes and two balloons. His exploits are legendary.

He became an air marshal during the Second World War when names like Andy Mynarski and Robert Gray shone.

Lieut. Gray from Nelson B.C. planned to become a doctor. He piloted his flaming aircraft until he could bomb a Japanese destroyer at point-blank range.

He died in the attack.

PO Mynarski a Winnipeg man died of burns suffered trying to rescue a rear gunner—who survived to tell the tale—in a doomed Lancaster over Cambrai, France.

Metcalfe was an American citizen, he was unable to receive military benefits from either country before that, so the VC didn't mean much in practical terms.

Now ailing and deaf, he and his wife are getting by in South Portland with the pension and U.S. social security.

Busy, Calm, Even Terrifying —That's Life on Huge Oil Rig

By JOHN JONES

In a dozen years of searching for oil, Gene Steinocher has never seen his drill touch the ground. He started on barges in the shallow waters of the Texas Gulf Coast, and today he's drilling into the sea bottom 12 miles off Tofino.

Mr. Steinocher doesn't fit the public's mental image of an oil drilling boss — the trade term is toolpusher. It's a role played in the old movies by the late William Bendix, all muscle and bluster.

For one thing, Sedco 135's commander looks about eight years younger than the 34 years he reached Friday, and he's a shade under average height.

But he's as wiry as a jockey and walks with a Texas lunge, and no clock ever ticked more smoothly than the 10,000 tons of oil rig that he runs.

No Orders

During five hours aboard Sedco 135 Friday, he was never seen or heard delivering any orders to anyone.

Still, one crewman after another remarked that, when the toolpusher said "Hop," nobody waited to ask how high.

Mr. Steinocher is one of two such bosses who alternate aboard the big rig, seven days at a time. The other is Larry Harter of Edmonton.

Crew members also work alternate weeks, changing about 10 at a time.

And Such

The number of men on board averages about 50, of which 22 are directly concerned with drilling and the rest are welders, painters, cooks, deckhands and such.

Operation of the rig sounds like a paperwork nightmare, with some of the men employed by South Eastern Commonwealth Drilling Co., and some by Shell Oil, which is leasing the rig from Sedco.

The crew this week all seem to be youngsters.

Right Over

Like Barge engineer Frank Willford, a north Texan whose jobs include keeping the rig — which oil men call a barge — level on its three catwalks and right over the drill hole.

This is managed by his men from the barge control centre — a gondola slung under the main deck and dominated by dozens of tubular flow gauges that monitor the ballast tanks, a radar-like screen that shows the position of the drill centre on the rig in relation to the hole in the sea floor, and banks of valves that control trim.

Easy Trio

In the centre of the main control panel is a setup too simple to be believed: three brass-mounted levels like carpenter's use, each with its centred bubble.

How exact the rig's placement has to be varies for a number of reasons. Ordinarily it may be anywhere within a 50-foot circle of a place specified by Shell for drilling.

Friday, the little red blip indicated 1 per cent off-centre, or two feet when drilling at 200 feet.

Way Down

Outside the control gondola is a catwalk apparently planned to terrify visitors. Its floor of wide steel mesh gives a giddily clear view of the waves 80 feet below.

While the great drill grinds deeper by the minute, the specialists are hard at it in the far corners of the giant rig.

Edward McMaster, for instance, is the exploitation engineer, who keeps a running check on what the drill brings up. His work for Shell is so secret that, as another crewman put it, "If you ask Ed what time it is, he thinks before he tells you."

Some Sum

Mr. McMaster has a gas-analyzing device that keeps track of odds and ends of gases trapped in the rock. When their kind and quantity add up to some predetermined sum, a buzzer will sound.

Meanwhile, he tests a sample of rock every 100 feet, and keeps his mouth closed.

Right now, Sedco 135 is working within clear sight of Tofino, if the weather is good. When the mist closes down, "we feel pretty much alone," says engineer Willford.

Busy Life

The crew has a busy but well-cared-for life. TV reception is good (the antenna is a real monster), the food is excellent and available 24 hours a day, and the cabins are spacious for their four men apiece.

Most of the men have homes and families now living in Victoria, and get to spend seven days at a stretch at home.

Between times, they have telephone service and a helicopter standing by at Tofino for routine errands and emergency work. With a little luck,

Victoria is only an hour away by helicopter and fast plane.

The rig stands steady, with only an occasional quiver to remind a visitor that he isn't on land.

It has still to ride out an autumn storm, but Mr. Steinocher observed:

Tug Tough

"We had hurricanes in Texas, and one of these lived through a typhoon off Borneo."

Mr. Willford added an afterthought: "It's those guys that I feel sorry for."

He waved in the direction of the bobbing tug tethered to a buoy a couple of hundred yards away.

"There they sit, 14 days at a stretch."

Soft Spot for Canada

Magnate Built City's Streets

More than 50 miles of Victoria's streets were built by Henry J. Kaiser, automobile and shipbuilding magnate, who died Thursday at 85.

The founder of an industrial empire which spread over 40 countries, Kaiser was stricken by a circulatory and heart condition, at his oceanfront estate about 10 miles from Honolulu.

At his side was his wife, Alyce, whom he married after the death of his first wife in 1951.

IN NEW YORK

Kaiser was born May 9, 1882 at Sprout Brook, N.Y., one of four children of German immigrants. He started his career as a $1.50-a-week clerk in a Utica, N.Y. dry goods store after leaving school at 13 to help support his family.

He moved to West Spokane, Washington in 1905, and arrived in Victoria to manage the local branch of a U.S. rubber company in 1912.

FIRST JOB

The Henry J. Kaiser Co. Ltd., was formed at Vancouver in 1914, and his first job was two miles of road paving on the Lower Mainland.

In Victoria he was responsible for building some 50 miles of city streets, and part of the Sidney highway, using vast quantities of sand and gravel from the Mount Tolmie gravel pit.

The materials were hauled on special cars over Victoria's streetcar system.

Kaiser's mass roadmaking plan gave Victoria more pavement per capita than any Canadian city at that time.

Kaiser

Years later Kaiser said, "I'm an American, but I've got an awfully soft spot in my heart for Canada. That's where I began."

LEARNING SPOT

"As a matter of fact that's where I learned to build airplanes."

"I started to make airplanes in Vancouver in association with a boat builder, but the war (First World War) ended before we got finished, and I dropped it."

Kaiser then went on to acquire the largest cement business in the world.

SAND, GRAVEL

To sell his cement he went into heavy construction, and also became owner of the world's largest sand and gravel business.

There was little Kaiser did not have a hand in: giant dams such as Hoover, Bonneville, Grand Coulee and Shasta; famed Liberty ships of the Second World War; the familiar Jeep; the Kaiser health centres; cement; aluminum; steel; chemicals; aircraft and missile components and electronic equipment; radio and television stations; hotels; and the latest, a new community of Hawaii-Kai in Honolulu with a projected population of 60,000.

HUGE EMPIRE

Kaiser founded a $2,700,000,000 industrial empire with 150 plants in 33 states and 40 countries.

They have 50,000 employees receiving $50,000,000 annually. They said they received word of the bomb via the telephone.

Strengthen Latin Ties Hees Urges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should strengthen her ties with Latin America and mobilize a freedom from hunger campaign Progressive Conservative leadership candidate George Hees said here.

In the sixth of a series of policy statements he called for a program to assist feeding developing nations, to investigate new food sources and to meet any immediate food shortages. Canada's agricultural knowledge should be placed at Latin America's disposal and guarantees should be given against nationalization without compensation he told a news conference.

Canada should also revise her policy of sending "people at the lowest end of the diplomatic ladder to Latin America."

But, said Mr. Hees, strengthening of ties with Latin America does not mean Canada should join the Organization of American States.

"I am afraid the Latin American countries would use us as a hammer to hit the United States over the head with," he said. "Right now the disadvantages of membership outweigh the advantages."

'Creative Citizens Stifled'

MONTREAL (CP) — David Fulton Friday assailed government policies which he said "restrain creative Canadians."

At a press conference, the candidate for the Progressive Conservative party leadership said Canadians who have achieved security by their own efforts have it guaranteed by the government.

"But the Canadian caught in the web of poverty remains unassured, lacking the education, the income, the assistance or the incentives to escape."

"He too is secure—but it is the security of a slave."

Mr. Fulton said he would not try to abolish medical care insurance if he takes over the government after the federal health plan has been established but would try to modify it.

Mr. Fulton said he does not know the difference between the special status for Quebec sought by Jean Lesage and the one now being talked about by Premier Daniel Johnson.

McRae Arguments Heard on Weekend

The arbitration hearing over the McRae Estate, now in its fifth week, will conclude this weekend.

Louis Lindholm, counsel for Saanich, was summarizing the municipality's arguments Friday. This will be followed by rebuttals from both sides.

Members of the arbitration board, adjudicating the price Saanich should pay for the McRae property, have indicated they will sit today and Sunday, particular treatment to any particular section of Canada," he told a combined press conference and meet-the-delegate session.

He said real equality between French and English Canada cannot be achieved unless it is preceded by economic equality. Economic measures aimed at this goal have to be taken in the "20 years it will take to change the constitution."

"The way English- and French-Canadians get along is a wonderful example to the whole world," he said. "We get along very well."

John D's Youth Brigade Promises Lively Ballot

TORONTO (CP) — The Youth for Diefenbaker Committee promises to make its presence felt at the Progressive Conservative leadership convention, but it will not say how. The committee's co-chairmen, Bill Hutton and Keith March, said Friday their plans will be kept secret because any demonstration from the floor will be ruled out of order.

"But we are determined to have some kind of demonstration whether Mr. Diefenbaker runs or not," Mr. Martin said.

"If the convention committee won't let us do it from the floor we'll ring the Maple Leaf Gardens."

The co-chairmen were disappointed that the convention committee had abandoned plans for a tribute to the party leader.

Convention co-chairman Edwin Goodman said a tribute

Hospital Emptied

PENTICTON (CP) — A bomb scare Friday night led to the evacuation of 85 patients, including 14 newborn babies, from the Penticton General Hospital.

Police, firemen and civil defence workers searched the hospital but found nothing. They said they received word of the bomb via the telephone.

Tory Delegates May Top 2,450

TORONTO (CP) — The number of voting delegates to the Progressive Conservative leadership convention here Sept. 5-9 may exceed 2,450, party officials said Friday.

Gene Rheame, PC executive secretary, said officials were planning for 2,343 delegates, but additions through "finer paper work" and accreditation of some of the participants at the recent conference at Montmorency Falls, Que., have raised the total.

He said all provinces except Quebec have filled their quotas. Quebec, whose representation will be the largest the province has ever sent to a PC convention, is short one riding and two university organizations.

Saanich Fire Project Near Halfway Point

A $39,000 project meant to control devastating fires on Mount Douglas is about half completed, Saanich officials said Friday.

The six-inch diameter water main has been extended up the mountainside, where a hydrant has been installed.

A municipal public works spokesman said the hydrant at that level is working and it will take about a week to complete the project.

Saanich council decided to install the main and hydrants after a fire a year ago leveled most of the timber stands on Mount Douglas.

Postage At Penny

PENNY, B.C. (CP) — Postal service has returned to residents of this small community, 75 miles east of Prince George.

The 180 residents have been without a post office since July 8 when postmistress Mrs. Wilma George resigned her 41-cent-an-hour position.

Members of the arbitration board, adjudicating the price Saanich should pay for the McRae property, have indicated they will sit today and Sunday,

Tips You Off

DISNEYLAND — Aside from hotel, people here estimate a family of four can see Disneyland (and get snack meals in the park) for $25 a day. Well worth it.

"We will be driving north from London, picking up a car at the airport (ordered in advance). Will we have difficulty getting through towns — left-hand drive, etc. What about tipping? What about driving licence?"

London airport is north of town. You don't have to drive through it. You pick the M-1 — the northbound freeway — alongside the airport. The rent-car people will put you on it.

The left-hand driving takes a thinking day to get used to. Keep your mind on it while driving. I wouldn't go out immediately on arrival. Sleep over night. You have several hours time change from North America, and it really throws off your reflexes. You need them. You aren't used to gauging car distance to the curb from a right-hand wheel. (I clipped a parked car immediately last year.)

For tipping: Figure the English shilling like our quarter. If the tip at home would be 50 cents — two shillings. Porters, a shilling a bag. Taxis and restaurants, 10 to 12 per cent of the bill.

If you sit at a pub bar, you don't tip the bartender. You ask him if he'd like a beer. More often the barman is a woman. Ask if you can buy her a beer anyway. She'll say yes.

"We shall have to take presents to people in Ireland and England and can't think of a thing."

I take long play records. Broadway shows. Pop singers. They pack flat, and I've had no trouble with customs. Customs in these countries ALWAYS ask if you are bringing presents. (I've never figured out what you CAN'T bring in, but I imagine it depends on how expensive it is.)

Europe gets just about everything we have here now. Just as we now can buy European things that used to be rare. Local things are unusual gifts for Europe. Color postcards from your home town.

"You once mentioned a place (for lunch?) in Rome with a delicious dessert..."

Capriccio, across from the American Embassy. Very pleasant. Somewhat pricey. The dessert is Monte Bianca.

"A famous restaurant in the old part of town in Madrid..."

That would be Botin's. (Has a longer name meaning "nephew of Botin.") But Botin's will do it for you. Hemingway made it famous. It is one of the scenes in The Sun Also Rises. It's in a little lantern-lit street (guilt music and smell of wine) — behind the Plaza Mayor, the great square. Lechon — suckling pig — is the house specialty. Get the house wine in carafe. Reserve a table. It's popular.

I guess you mean Prendes on 16th of September Street in the old part of the city. Pigeon, red snapper, shrimps, steak and excellent draft beer. The waiters have been there as long as I can remember, and the service is pleasant and professional. Brightly lit and tile floor — no candlelight place. But I like it.

Another would be the rooftop of the Majestic Hotel on the great square. At night, they light the plaza. The food is Mexican. And you remember that Cortez marched into this same square when there was a temple where the cathedral stands. And the presidential palace was the palace of Montezuma.

PARIS (UPI)—The tourist business in Paris slowed down to a walk this summer, and the experts blame politics. Some travel agencies blamed the Middle East crisis for the slump. Many Americans and Canadians who cancelled trips to Israel or Egypt had planned to stop in Paris en route. The Greek coup d'etat in April also is believed to have cut down on the tourist traffic through Paris. And then there is de Gaulle.

Cadet Regatta

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club's annual junior sailing cadet regatta will start at 9 a.m. today for all cadets who have taken part in the club's sailing program this year.

Paris Suffers Slump Politics Keep Tourists Away

Many Americans have written to friends and to Paris newspapers that they would not touch French soil this year because of President de Gaulle's anti-American foreign policy.

De Gaulle's trip to Quebec and its repercussions have kept Canadians away.

Official figures for 1967 will not be released until next May, but the gloom among tourists people tells its own story.

Mesmerized, the Parisian newspaper Le Figaro comments: "Is our food less tasty? Our girls less pretty? Until now tourists were concerned only with these things, but now they are putting their noses into our foreign policy as well."

Canada Must Compete

TORONTO (CP)—Canada could face a "serious let-down" in travel revenue after earning more than $1,000,000,000 through the tourist industry this year, the Canadian Tourist Association says in a brief prepared for all provincial governments.

A fall-off in tourist business could affect the country's balance-of-payments position after 1967 unless governments adopt aggressive promotional policies to match the efforts of other countries, the brief said.

Oscar Winner 71

Actor Dies

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Veteran stage and screen actor Paul Muni, who won the acting Oscar of 1936 for The Story of Louis Pasteur, died Friday at his home after an illness of several years. He was 71.

Born Paul Mund Welschfreund in Lemberg, Austria, he came to the U.S. as a child of six and appeared in vaudeville with his parents.

After years in stock companies, Muni first appeared on Broadway in 1926 and in Hollywood movies two years later. He was a star from the start, gaining his greatest fame as Pasteur and Emile Zola in films.

After his movie career waned, Muni returned to Broadway in The Last Angry Man and Inherit the Wind, winning the actor-of-the-year award of 1956 for his performance in the latter play.

Old Munitions Won't Go

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—The U.S. Navy's initial attempt to detonate 2,000 tons of obsolete munitions sealed in the hull of a sunken surplus ship on the floor of the North Pacific off the Aleutians failed Thursday. Further attempts were postponed indefinitely.

The Stevenson went down slower than expected and drifted off course.

The munitions are in the hold of the Robert Louis Stevenson, which sank in about 3,000 feet of water Aug. 10 some 17 miles south of Amchitka Island. The ship and cargo were to have been used in a research project to help locate underground nuclear explosions. It was to have been sunk in an other area and the explosives detonated by a hydrostatic device in a 4,000 foot depth.

The Stevenson went down slower than expected and drifted off course.

Meet the Steelers

Wayne Conrad

He Toughed It Out

By JIM TANG

Few football players have ever had a tougher start with a new club than Wayne Conrad did with the Steelers.

Sideline watchers at a Topaz Avenue workout a couple of weeks ago watched with fascination as coach Don McKeta teased Conrad with about 45 minutes of man-to-man drill, sending in fresh testers for about every third shot at the reeling newcomer.

There were reports that a lesson was being taught but whatever the reason, the two principals came away from it with considerable respect for each other.

MUTUAL RESPECT

"I guess I didn't have my head on right," said Conrad, who didn't utter a word of complaint.

"He'll do," said McKeta the next day in a terse but volume-filled comment.

There was little, if any, doubt after that indoctrination, but that Conrad would be around as one of the Steelers' starting guards.

Born in Edmonton, the 21-year-old, 230-pound Conrad started his football career at Viscount Bennett High School in Calgary, where he played one year.

MADE ALL-STAR

He then started a junior football career at 15 with three years at Mount Royal Junior College and followed that with two seasons for the junior North Hill Colts.

He was named to the Alberta Junior Football League all-star team three times, once as a guard and twice as a line-backer.

After the 1966 junior season ended, he joined the Steelers then in the Pacific Football League, for their third game and finished the season here.

He attended the Calgary Stampede's training camp, was tried as both line-backer and

Fire Danger May Delay Hunting

The fire danger in forests throughout southern B.C. may result in a delayed start to the hunting season, a spokesman for the fish and game branch said Friday.

Dr. James Hatter, director of the branch, said the B.C. Forest Service has given assurance that closures now in effect in the Vancouver, Nelson and Kamloops forest districts will be lifted as soon as it is safe to do so.

The dates for opening the season vary in different parts of the closed sections. On Vancouver Island grouse hunting was due to start Sept. 2 and deer hunting Sept. 9. This will apply now, only if the closure is lifted in time, officials said.

Canadian Junior Golf

Roxburgh Gains Final

TORONTO (CP) — Jay Paukunen of Port Arthur and Douglas Roxburgh of Vancouver have survived 36 holes of match-play to reach the finals of the Canadian junior golf championship.

Paukunen, 18, defeated Mike Mooney of Red Deer, Alta., on the second extra hole of the semi-final match-play round Friday, while Roxburgh, 15, disposed of Stephen Bannatyne of Winnipeg 1-up.

The 36-hole final is scheduled for today.

Roxburgh, who has been golfing for less than three years, was three holes up after the first four and, although Bannatyne rallied to tie him on the 17th, the Vancouver golfer won on the 18th hole after his opponent's drive off the tee went into the trees.

Paukunen's victory was one of the best comeback endeavors of the tournament. He was down three holes with three remaining in the match.

SANK 30-FOOTER

He got a par four on the 16th and a par three on the 17th, while Mooney went one over on each. Then Paukunen sank a 30-foot birdie putt on the par-four 18th hole to tie the match.

Mooney took a two-over-par six on the 20th hole, while Paukunen got a par for the victory.

Paukunen had gone to the final hole in the morning's quarter-final round tied with Pete Lago of Guelph before pulling the clutch stroke for a 1-up victory.

Meanwhile, Roxburgh had defeated Doug Painter of Toronto 3 and 1 in the morning round, while Mooney defeated Richard Dumeah of Liverpool, N.S., 1-up.

WON BY DEFAULT

Bannatyne had been scheduled to play Pete Oakley of Falls Church, Va., but the U.S. golfer arrived 15 minutes after his tee-off time and was disqualified.

Oakley said he got the tee-off time wrong the previous day. Officials of the Royal Canadian Golf Association said that if Oakley had a legitimate excuse for being late the disqualification might have been reconsidered.

Garden Notes

Aphids Aid Fungus

By M. V. CHESNUT

The plum tree is not a particularly miffy subject and as a rule it doesn't require much in the way of coddling. It is a rather good idea, though, to look them over carefully as soon as the crop has been harvested, for there are a couple of rather peculiar disorders which can be spotted in late summer and fall.

Towards the end of the growing season, the foliage of the plum tree will often assume a dirty and woebegone appearance, looking as if the leaves had been dusted with soot. The dirty deposit isn't only on the plum leaves and twigs, either, for plants and grass under the tree are often befouled as well. The affected leaves feel sticky to the touch, but the "soot" will brush off when rubbed with the finger.

The cause of all this is interesting. At some stage through the summer, the tree suffered an infestation of aphids which may or may not have been severe enough to produce the typical symptoms of curled and crumpled foliage. These aphids exude a secretion known as honeydew, sticky and sweet, which is spread by the rain, forming a thin film over the leaves.

Next comes the villain of the plot, the wind-borne spores of fungus called sooty mould. The film of honeydew on the leaves is an ideal propagating medium for the fungus, which spreads like wildfire, and soon the whole tree has taken on a dirty and disreputable appearance.

It isn't any good fighting the sooty mould fungus — the only control possible is to rake up and burn the leaves — but do make sure that aphids don't get a foothold on your tree next year. A winter wash to kill overwintering eggs will help a lot, and this should be supplemented with the proper spring and summer sprays if and when aphids are detected.

Another interesting and end-of-season disorder is the plum rust disease, another fungus which causes small yellow angular blotches on the upper surfaces of the leaves which later turn brown. The under surface is covered with dark brown rusty spores which occur in groups coinciding with the yellow markings on the upper surfaces.

Where did the rust spores come from? Believe it or not they spent the winter on the leaves of anemone plants, moving from the anemones to the plum tree along about June. And when the plum leaves fall, the spores will sift again to their alternative host, the anemones.

The thing to do here is to break up this happy partnership by finding the anemone plants and giving them the old heave-ho to the farthest corner of the garden, as far removed from the plum tree as possible. Just as the wheat rust cannot exist without the barberry bush, so the plum rust cannot complete its life cycle without anemones.

Spray the tree with summer-strength lime sulphur after the fruit is harvested, but before the leaf-fall, and again next year when the fruit is about half swollen.

ERMA BOMBECK and the Last Redoubt

Mrs. Williams Hits Back

Nuclear and aeronautical testing have been blamed for a lot of things. Some people contend they're responsible for the population explosion, the floods, the droughts, cancer and even air pollution. Some even believe the fish haven't been biting on worms since Nagasaki.

Recently in London a Mrs. Dora Cartwright Williams put her finger on the real problem. "All this superhuman testing is a blasted inconvenience."

She expressed her views after the government set off a series of superhuman bangs without prior warning and invited people to write in their reactions to them.

Mrs. Williams wrote thusly. "I was sitting in the holy of holies doing a crossword puzzle when a superhuman bang blew me right off the seat," she said. "I found myself on the floor in a most distressed condition."

As any fool can see, we're not talking here about a few cups rattling in the cupboard or a picture askew on the wall from a plane breaking the sound barrier. This is serious business. We're really attacking the problem of the invasion of privacy.

The problem poses several questions. Where can a person go to escape the pressures of modern-day civilization? Where can a person seek refuge from the impending roar and boom of tomorrow's world?

Where, for crying out loud, can a person go to work a crossword puzzle?

Little by little civilization has chipped away at our quest for privacy. Candid TV cameras capture us as we shop, transistor radios are with us always, the suburbs have banded us together like a necklace, ribbons of highways connect patches of once-desolate beaches to pizza parlors. We are in the throes of a communications explosion.

The "holy of holies" was the last hideout. Only here could you pick your teeth, remove olive pits from your mouth, spit on your mascara brush, look at your tongue, slump or scratch.

It was virtually the only oasis from the hustle and bustle of living which heaven help us, is so "daily." You could retreat here and have a good cry, hide from your wife, watch little notes come under the door and not answer them.

Ah, Mrs. Williams, I'm glad you returned the government's blast. Somewhere we must hold the line. Our backs are to the wash basin. There shall be no retreat.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Script 'Too Inflammatory'

HOLLYWOOD-ON-THAMES (NANA) — Diane Cienfuegos, also known as Mrs. Sean Connery, has run into problems in producing and starring in Witch of Rose Hall, planned for her own company in Jamaica. She was at the blackjack table at the Pair of Shoes — observing, not playing at the star-studded party owner Eric Steiner splashed for Barbara Rush and her public relations husband, Warren Cowan. At this particular time, Diane's "Witch" is considered "too inflammatory." The postponement makes it possible for her to accompany Sean to Mexico when he makes his western, Shalako, early in October. Diane's book, The Manipulator, appears in the fall.

David Niven, arriving late from his Prudence and the Pill, not only kissed me on both cheeks but shared the wealth with my daughter. Then, turning to young actor Peter McEnery he said, "Here is the best young actor in England." There are so many good young actors in England, it would be hard to single out the very best, but Peter — did you see him in The Game Is Over with Jane Fonda? — is certainly near the top.

Young Michael Crawford was at the party with his pregnant wife. He thanked me for some of the nice things I have written about his performances on stage and screen, and then asked me, "Have you seen Diek Lester's film, How I Won the War? Michael stars in this far-out anti-war movie with Beatie John Lennon. "I want you to see it," he said. "Then I'd like to do an interview with you on the film." I agreed.

Shirley MacLaine had just left I was told. Ditto Mike Caine, both having to get up early the next day for their respective pictures. But Bona Jaffe was still wandering around. Naturally some of the pretty girls gravitated towards grocery millionaire Huntington Hartford, who, I read over my morning coffee, is almost down to his last $10,000,000 trust fund. He is trying to sell his New York art museum which I gather has cost him a couple of million, and he also suffered a $9,000,000 loss in his enterprise in the Bahamas. But he didn't look too unhappy as he gyrated around the girls or vice versa. He's still attractive at 55 and even a lousy $10,000,000 is still pretty to look at.

Climate's Personal

SYDNEY HARRIS

We still know painfully little about the relation between climate and conduct — but I am convinced that human personalities are divided into distinct climatic types.

PIXIES

By Wohl

Just as the medieval physicians used to separate people into the "four humors," I would separate them into the four climatic types: Mountains, plains, sea and desert. Much personal unhappiness, it seems to me, is caused by the wrong sort of person living in the wrong sort of climate. The tremendous trek to California in the last decade is proof that many persons are finally awakening to this truth.

I happen to be a water man myself; that is, I have a compelling need, both mentally and physically, to live as close to a large body of water as possible.

If I find myself in a landlocked city on the plains, I feel as claustrophobic as if I were locked into a telephone booth. It is even worse on the desert, which has a kind of nightmarish quality for me — I am forever looking for a lake or ocean just over the horizon.

The mountains are a little better. Their height and scope and snowy peaks at least give me a sense of vista that partly compensates for the lack of water. But I am not really happy away from the sea.

Apart from economic necessity, I am sure that the only thing keeping millions of people in arid areas is their deep (if unconscious) love of the plains. They feel comfortable and at home on the prairies; I feel spiritually parched there.

The mountain people are perhaps the most passionate of all. They will sacrifice everything, including their economic well-being, to live near the peaks. The skiers and mountain climbers are a dedicated lot, almost fanatical in their devotion to the crags. I'm sure the psychiatrists have some profound and elaborate explanation for these geographic attachments, but I'm just as sure that the old-fashioned doctor who prescribed "a change of climate" was, in his own fumbling fashion, expressing his vague certainty that where we live influences how we feel and think and act.

'Twin' Case Ends in Jail

Courtroom Parade

George Morrison, also known as David John Barclay, and Richard Barclay were sentenced to jail in central magistrate's court Friday, ending two months of confusion and contradiction.

Morrison was sentenced to a definite term of 18 months in the Young Offenders' Unit and an indefinite period of 12 months. Barclay was sentenced to 12 months in the same institution with an indefinite period of six months.

Both had pleaded guilty last week to eight counts of false pretences.

CLAIMS RELATED

In the weeks that the two have been on charge, Morrison has claimed to be Barclay's twin brother (they are not related) and has claimed their fingerprints have been mixed up by police. Richard served time under George's name and vice versa, and they did not commit the offences but were taking the rap for an unidentified third person.

Before passing sentence, Magistrate William Oster said: "This case has been a very difficult one."

Sentence will be passed Wednesday on Glen Warner, 17, of Edmonton, who pleaded guilty last week to possession of marijuana. Sentence was to be passed Friday but the adjournment was asked by defence counsel Brian Smith.

Four motorists were fined a total $1,200 when they pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Fined $300 each were Kathleen Grainger, 450 Dallas, licence suspended; Simone Champagne, Vancouver, licence suspended for four months; William McLeod, Nanaimo, licence suspended; Kenneth Clark, 316 Skinner, licence suspended.

Municipal Leaders Agree

Sewerage
Law
Wise Move

The provincial government has taken the vacillation and "petty bickering" out of municipal sewerage planning, Reeve Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, said Friday night.

"I can't find any area of disagreement," added the reeve, commenting on the government announcement that it will force municipalities to install sewerage treatment facilities without ratepayer consent.

Other municipal leaders in the Greater Victoria area generally agreed with him.

"In effect, the government has set a deadline," said Reeve Curtis. "This is good because there always is a danger of us getting down to petty bickering."

It places a time limit on a job which has to be done."

He said the next phase in the regional board's planning to implement its sewerage scheme will be a report on the feasibility of composting wastes. This will be presented at the board's next meeting.

Reeve Curtis said he didn't expect the provincial government to share the cost of "every foot of sewer pipe" but he would have liked to hear it say it was making more money available for research into pollution control.

Bryant Welcomes Move

Esquimalt Reeve Ray Bryant welcomed the move to give the Pollution Control Board some teeth.

"I've always regarded the Pollution Control Board as useless but if the new regulations are as strong as they appear to be, it's a step in the right direction."

He did not expect the regulations would make too much difference in Esquimalt, which already has a sewer system.

Mr. Bryant said he hopes the provincial government will reconsider its decision on giving help with sewage treatment.

"The unorganized districts particularly are going to need help," he said.

Urban sprawl will be stopped by the new regulations, according to him.

Return Wastes to Soil

The agriculture department should consider the necessity of returning all wastes to the soil in the form of humus, he added.

Colwood representative William Reader also called for consideration of treatment plants instead of outfalls before the Greater Victoria sewage plan is implemented.

"Despite Mr. Campbell's dictatorial method of putting it across I do like the idea of getting away from pollution," he said.

Mr. Campbell's attitude in denying any financial assistance was "contradictory," he said.

"In the case of hospitals, he says if the government gives higher grants they will have to run the hospitals. Here they are running the sewers, but refusing to give any grants."

Acting Reeve C. W. Mollard of Central Saanich said Mr. Campbell was "very wise to bring the whole problem to a head."

"This is a shot in the arm for the southern part of Vancouver Island," he added. "We have done a lot of talking but now we will have to get something done."

Mr. Mollard said all Central Saanich is on septic tanks but a sewage disposal system is now being prepared which will take wastes across the municipality into Haro Strait.

Fort and Moss
Stoplight Set

A new pedestrian-operated traffic signal will go into operation at Fort and Moss on Monday, the city traffic department says.

The new signal will bring the number of vehicular and pedestrian signals in the city to 70. Pedestrians and motorists have been asked to use extra caution at this corner until all become accustomed to the new signal.

Stewart speaks for request

By 5-2 Vote

City's Final Word:
Hippie Love-In Out

By A. H. MURPHY

Victoria city council Friday banned a Sunday love-in in Beacon Hill Park.

By a vote of five to two following a 21-minute meeting council supported its earlier stand taken by acting mayor Robert Baird and rejected a request from the Victoria Youth Council to stage the weekend climax to Youth Week.

Ald. Ian Stewart, backed by Ald. Lily Wilson, asked council to dismiss prejudice from their minds when they voted.

"This is a matter of fair play," said Ald. Stewart. "I am not a hippie, neither do I subscribe to their way of life. But this matter is more involved than that. We are discussing what council's decision should be when any duly constituted group makes a request."

DARK AGES

"If their meeting will be offensive to the majority, or if they are going to interfere unduly with other groups, then I would support rejection."

"But if we are going to reject their application because of bias and prejudice, then we have gone a long way back into the dark ages."

Ald. Stewart said he was confident that the young people would not only observe all the laws if they were permitted to hold the love-in, but they would also make sure they did not spoil other events held in the park.

FOR PERMISSION

Ald. Wilson said she supported the motion calling for permission for the love-in because Beacon Hill Park, as all parks in the city, should be available to all people.

But both aldermen ran into staunch opposition from other council members.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said he was against the love-in because the Victoria Symphony Orchestra already had the Cameron Bandshell booked for a Sunday performance.

COST FACTOR

"Beacon Hill Park costs the city $148,000 a year to keep up," he said. "People should be able to go there, and enjoy peace and quiet. How can they do that if there is a meeting of several thousand people in the park?"

One large group should not be permitted to take over. Anyone who doesn't want to listen to the symphony should be able to wander away and find peace and quiet in another corner of the park. How can they do that if there's a demonstration on?"

NO SYMPATHY

Ald. Hugh Ramsay said he had "no sympathy at all with the hippie movement."

He stressed that Mayor Hugh Stephen had set a city policy when following the last love-in he had suggested that in future the hippies go to another municipality.

STRONGER LAWS

"Possibly we need stronger bylaws regarding loitering, littering and vagrancy," he said while deploring the attitude of the hippies frequenting Centennial Square.

Ald. Cecil Parrott suggested there was more to the application to hold a love-in than first met the eye.

WHY SUNDAY?

"Why do they want to hold it on this particular Sunday?" he asked. "There is something more perhaps than we know. If the youth council is connected in any way with these people we see in the Square, then we should be concerned."

"For the life of me I can't see why they want it (the love-in) on this particular day."

PUBLIC THERE

Some 56 members of the public were on hand for the brief debate and the solid rejection of the application.

Throughout the day the switchboard at City Hall has been jammed with calls from the public, the vast majority firmly behind Ald. Baird.

ONLY FOR NOW?

Following the council meeting several aldermen stated that council was only turning down the love-in for this Sunday.

They suggested that they might have a different point of view if the request for a love-in was made for a day when it clashed with no other events in the park.

Saanich Clears Cats,
On to Miscellaneous

Saanich council Monday night will have round No. 3 with its proposed beast, bird and bee bylaw.

At two previous sittings, the municipality's lands and planning committee spent a total of seven hours in sentence-by-sentence reviews of the new bylaw.

Councillors finished cats two weeks ago. They still have to consider wild animals, poultry, ornamental birds, pigeons, show birds, bees, kennels for boarding, breeding and training of cats, dogs and other small animals, veterinary clinics, riding stables and academies, noise control, health care and sanitation, pounds and administration.

Highlights so far include suggestions that no more than five dogs more than four months old be kept on a parcel of land under five acres. The same prohibition applies to cats.

"Animal" has been defined as all mammals "other than humans and without limiting the generality of the foregoing shall include farm animals, dogs, cats, rodents, fur-bearing animals and wild animals."

"Bird" has been defined as a creature in a class of warm-blooded vertebrates "distinguished by having the body more or less completely covered with feathers and forelimbs modified as wings."

Council was going to define a bee as Apis mellifera until a group of beekeepers urged them to include Apis mellifica as well. Council conceded.

Valerie at keyboard with teacher Jane Chapman

It's Fingertip World

Electronics experts have put together a device that will give a courageous little Victoria girl, the victim of cerebral palsy, a medium through which she'll be able to communicate.

Her hearing impaired, her tiny hands and arms difficult to control, nine-year-old Valerie next month will be sitting down at a special keyboard, wired into a teletype at the Handicapped Children's Clinic, 3155 Richmond.

Her teachers and engineering faculty at the University of British Columbia are hopeful that the equipment will enable her to put together words and eventually sentences.

Last school terms, teachers fitted an electric typewriter with a shield in an attempt to teach Valerie how thoughts can be transformed into words. However, she could not control her arms and fingers well enough to use the device.

For the school term beginning next month, Valerie will have her own typewriter—an old teletype donated by B.C. Telephone which is activated by an oversize keyboard designed at UBC.

The two devices have been linked together so that when she punches a key the letter or figure appears on the teletype.

Last year, teacher Jane Chapman and her husband, John, a research scientist at the Federal Forestry Laboratory here, thought of the idea of using an electric typewriter.

When the typewriter didn't work, Dr. and Mrs. Chapman took their problem to Dr. Michael Beddoes, an associate professor in UBC's department of electrical engineering.

He and colleagues Dr. J. S. MacDonald and Dr. R. W. Donaldson, plus two technicians, went to B.C. Telephone for the teletype.

Personnel from B.C. Telephone in Victoria have volunteered their time—after hours, if necessary—to maintain Valerie's typewriter.

Abridged Span Opening

Without fanfare, barriers were removed and cars moved over new Gorge Bridge at about 6 p.m. Friday. John Chew, 4839 West Saanich, drove first car over bridge, a joint project of provincial government, Saanich and Esquimalt municipalities. An army section-type Bailey bridge, which has coped with one-way traffic since destruction of old bridge last month, will be dismantled.

Injuries

Hospital Liable,
Must Pay

Mr. Justice Gregory of British Columbia Supreme Court ruled Friday that St. Joseph's Hospital is liable for injuries suffered by Mrs. Gladys Knight, 40, of Courtenay on the operating table.

The woman's right forearm and wrist were crushed in a mechanism when she was being transferred to a stretcher after surgery June 14, 1964.

Mr. Justice Gregory at the same time exonerated the three surgeons involved in the operation—Dr. Rudolph Anderson, Dr. R. Neville Grant and Dr. H. R. Carter.

The judge directed that damages be assessed after further legal argument on the costs of the action.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST

August 26, 1967

Firemen's drill: The three fire companies proceeded at the tag of bell on Saturday afternoon to the corner of Yates and Government streets, where the Tiger and Deluge engines drew water from the public water tanks and forced it in powerful streams over the St. Nicholas Hotel. The hoses and ladders were unlimbered by the truck boys, who used them in scaling walls and pulling down imaginary obstructions.

The Scurry Case: We learn, on the doubtful authority of our Sunday contemporary, that the men from the Ald, now in hospital, have been questioned by order of the Magistrate and declared the food furnished them was most excellent. We hope, for the sake of humanity, that this statement is true; but true or false, inquiries ought in future to be held upon scurry infected ships if only for the purpose of ascertaining the cause and adopting measures to prevent other vessels from sharing a like fate.

School Friends Meet

It isn't often one hears of a friendship of 64 years. Especially when the persons involved live in widely separated areas.

But Mrs. Albert C. Brandt of Bethlehem, New Hampshire, and Sarasota, Fla., and Mrs. John Galt of Victoria have done just that—kept a friendship alive and warm more than 60 years.

Mrs. Brandt and her daughter, Mrs. Nancy B. Stevenson of Boxford, Mass., have been here for the past week and will leave today for a trip by boat to Alaska.

Mrs. Brandt, the former Florence V. Coles, was born in Victoria but went to Vancouver at an early age. It was at Dawson School in Vancouver that she and Mrs. Galt, the former Dorothy Marsden, met. They sat together in school and formed a friendship that has lasted so many years.

Mrs. Nancy B. Stevenson of Boxford, Mass., left, her mother, Mrs. Albert C. Brandt of Bethlehem, N.H., and

There have been visits back and forth, especially on important occasions, that have helped to keep the friends close. But in between times there has been a correspondence that never lagged. The visit has brought them up to date again.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: When does "minding one's own business" cease to be a virtue and begin to be an act of cowardice?

This morning I heard a youngster crying in front of my house. I looked out to see a little neighbor child surrounded by four jeering children. The boy was wearing a diaper over his trousers and had a cardboard sign around his neck which read, "I am seven years old and I still wet my bed."

I was furious and went outside and began to remove the sign and the diaper. My husband stopped me and said, "IT IS NONE OF YOUR BUSINESS."

I know the child's mother. She is a divorcee and as nutty as a fruitcake. Her oldest boy plays centerfield with his thumb in his mouth. A middle child, a girl, has nervous eye ticks and stutters. Now this little fellow is being tortured because he wets the bed.

Should I try to help these kids by talking to them? Or should I plead with the deranged mother to get help for herself and her children? — NO NAME PLEASE

Dear N.N.P.: Pleading with deranged people is useless. Your best bet is to have a talk with the teachers in whose classes these unfortunate children will be next fall. Surely they will recognize evidence of a tragic home life. Your information and interest should encourage the teachers to investigate and see that the appropriate steps are taken to save these kids.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter wants to go steady. I am nothing wrong with it since the boy is a very nice lad and comes from a good family.

My husband is against it. He says it is ridiculous to allow a 13-year-old girl to accept a boy's friendship ring and go only with him. I understand from friends that going steady does not mean what it did in our day. They claim it is the "in" thing and that most kids outgrow it.

We have been having some heated discussions on this subject since my husband and I are divided. The line-up is now two against two. Our 17-year-old sides with his father. What do you say? — PARK RIDGE

Future Universities

To Train for the Unknown

By ELINOR READING

VANCOUVER (CP) — A noted Canadian architect says the university of the future may be the centre of the city, and university training may last all your life.

Arthur Erickson, designer and building co-ordinator for Simon Fraser University, told the Canadian Federation of Women that changes in architectural style reflect changes in an institution itself.

Mr. Erickson addressed delegates to the federation's triennial convention after a dinner in their honor tendered by the provincial government. The dinner was held at the new university, which has attracted international interest in its radical design since it opened in suburban Burnaby, two years ago.

The architect said North American culture offers "marvellous machines but naive human values."

"An economic system is hardly substituting for moral and cultural leadership in a world that badly needs it."

In a world of computers, students needed not memorized knowledge but "training for the unknown."

"Today any intelligent youth knows he doesn't need a teacher in the traditional sense — and he hardly needs a university in the traditional sense," Mr. Erickson said. "However he does need resources — vast resources, readily available."

He said the "campus" pattern means separate buildings for separate studies, "each having little regard for the other."

Future universities, designed to be unified and compact, might be planned within a grid of passages like streets, like a miniature city.

This would be the "non-university" — the university completely absorbed within the city pattern" and taking an active part in the life of the community around it.

At the convention's afternoon session at the University of British Columbia, G. Eleanor Shaw, of St. Catharines, Ont., was elected national finance chairman and Mrs. R. B. Ramsay of Regina was elected chairman of international relations. Other officers were to be approved by acclamation Saturday.

Marriage Guessing Game

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Handsome crown prince Carl Gustaf of Sweden is not expected to marry for several years, but already royal family followers are musing about his romantic plans.

If the 21-year-old Carl Gustaf marries a Swedish commoner while he is still crown prince he will lose his rights to the throne.

If, however, he waits until he ascends the throne — once he is 25 and when his grandfather, King Gustaf Adolf, dies — he can choose whomever he likes.

The blond, blue-eyed crown prince would be under no restriction now or later if he chose to marry a commoner from a foreign country.

Viewed by many as the most attractive blue-blooded young man in Europe today, Carl Gustaf sets tongues wagging wherever he is seen with young ladies.

Frequent visits to Britain have given rise to rumors that he has become fond of 16-year-old Princess Anne and that a royal romance is not far off.

The crown prince usually goes abroad every year during his summer holidays to perfect his foreign languages.

One of the loveliest of summer brides is Mrs. Robert Wheaton, who was married Thursday evening. The former Julie Banfield, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lloyd Banfield of Cardiff Place. The young Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton will make their new home in Vancouver.—(William E. John)

Get More Pay Teachers Told

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—B.C.'s school teachers are being advised to seek significant salary increases in September.

This is the recommendation of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, which concluded a five-day strategy planning session Friday. It is being left to the 80 local associations across the province to decide actual demands for negotiations with school boards starting next month.

The teachers also are being advised to consider seeking supplementary sick leave benefits, shared-cost group life insurance and detached duty or educational leave provisions.

The agreement committee, which met behind closed doors during the B.C.T.F.'s summer conference, stated in a release Friday that wage and salary increases for teachers in other provinces and for the work force in general justify significant increases for teachers in B.C.

LOTTERY BACKED

It said there is a special need and supportable case for higher increases for existing scales for teachers with a university degree and for those with masters degrees.

The meeting also was urged to support a government-sponsored lottery to produce funds for educational research.

Arthur Benzer of Trail and Coe Blou of Nanaimo said B.C. should copy the New Zealand lottery system and use the proceeds to improve schools.

TEACHER FIRST

Edward Nelson, second vice-president of the federation, said teachers should get away from subject and child-centred education and think instead of a teacher-centred system.

"Teacher-centredness is the surest guarantee the child will be the ultimate beneficiary of all educational efforts," he said.

Mental Health

Director Named For B.C.

Dr. H. William Bridge has been appointed director of mental health services for B.C. It was announced Friday.

Deputy mental health minister Dr. F. G. Tucker said the appointment is effective Sept. 1 and is another step in the reorganization of the province's mental health services.

Dr. Bridge will be located in the Vancouver area and is responsible for the operation of all provincial mental institutions providing in-patient care as well as for the mental health centre in Burnaby.

He was born in Ireland, where he received his early education and medical degrees, took psychiatric training in England and New York, and studied administration at Columbia University.

Jobless Total Declines

The B.C. employment picture brightened slightly in July, as increases in the number of employed people outstripped additions to the labor force.

Government figures Friday showed the B.C. unemployment rate dropped to 4.3 from 4.7 per cent and the total of jobless fell by 3,000 to 23,000. B.C. counted 722,000 people employed as of July 31, and the labor force was 745,000.

World In Brief

Quakers Ship Aid for North

Medicare Urged In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—The Union Nationale government, which has opposed a universal medical care plan, refused any comment Friday after a royal commission recommended just that for the province.

The commission, headed by Claude Castonguay of Quebec City, urged a universal, complete, public and obligatory plan as soon as possible, citing the federal medicare target date of July 1, 1968.

The cost of an immediate Quebec universal plan was estimated near $500,000,000. But the commission said its recommended system meets federal qualifications and Quebec should ask Ottawa at once for aid without any conditions.

UVic Man Given $6,000

Dr. Reginald Roy, chairman of the University of Victoria's social sciences research centre, has been awarded a $6,000 Canada Council grant for research on the second of a three-volume B.C. bibliography.

This is one of several projects sponsored by the centre, formed in 1964 to promote research in social sciences related to B.C.

However, Mr. McLaughlin said Friday, "my desk is piling up with anguished cries of misery from people being hit by this strike."

McLaughlin said reports from across Canada Friday began to paint a gloomy view of the effects of the strike by 5,400 seafarers that began at noon, Aug. 17.

Reports that 200 elevator workers had been laid off for lack of work in Fort Arthur, 100 in Fort William, 16 in Quebec City and an undetermined number in Sorel, Que., added to the complaints of 1,200 marine officers and 4,000 ships' captains and mates left unemployed by the strike.

Mr. McGiffin, who is also president of Canada Steamship Lines, said that 550 longshoremen, hired by the company, had been sent home.

Several hundred dock workers were reported out of work in Quebec City.

In Montreal, Ray Green, president of the Montreal teamsters' brotherhood, said layoffs would soon be affecting 6,000 teamsters on docks and over-land freight jobs.

Prairie Dozen Greeted

Victoria greeters, including official escort Bob Foster at right, turned out in force Friday as 12 centennial youth travellers arrived from Winnipeg. They are among 15,000 high school students travelling across Canada this summer and will remain here until Sept. 12, living with host families.—(Jim Ryan)

Strike Brings Anguished Cries

Seafarers Want Mediator

MONTREAL (CP)—Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, president of the striking Seafarers' International Union, Friday sent a telegram to Labor Minister Nicholson asking for appointment of a mediator to end the seafarers' dispute with Great Lakes shipping companies.

The telegram says Mr. McLaughlin has received "numerous complaints by shippers and various authorities" about the effects of the shipping tie-up and asks for the appointment "in the public interest."

BLACK REASON

It comes on the heels of statements made Thursday by John McGiffin, president of the Canadian Lake Carriers Association, who said "there's no emergency for the 32 shipping companies involved as yet."

Lake carrier companies have claimed since the walkout began that the S.I.U. chose a "black" shipping season for the strike and cannot expect to beat down company bargainers by exerting economic pressure through a strike.

NIGHT IN JAIL

Three of the four spent the night in jail after being arrested during an egg-and-rock-throwing melee Thursday afternoon. The fourth was arrested Friday. All were remanded on bail until Tuesday on charges of assaulting or obstructing police.

Injunction Granted In Woodfibre Clash

WOODFIBRE (CP)—A Supreme Court injunction was granted Friday to halt picketing at the Rayonier pulp and paper mill here.

The picket line by boat loaders was honored Thursday by more than 100 mill workers arriving to go on the morning shift.

Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. then sought an ex parte injunction to halt the picketing, saying the mill would be closed if Friday's morning shift of workers honored the line.

Mr. Justice James MacDonald refused the ex parte application but granted an injunction Friday after notice of the writ had been posted at the picketing site.

However, shortly before the injunction was granted, the picketers waved through the morning shift of mill workers.

The pickets, part-time employees, load pulp on deep sea ships. They are currently seeking a contract. A spokesman said they waved the workers through because they didn't want to close the mill. All are members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Sunday School Invites Parents

Parents are being invited to attend the resumption of Sunday church school classes at Christ Church Cathedral Sept. 10.

"Parents are asked to come," says Rev. Roy Hoult, "because the teaching and learning programs can only be truly effective if parents and teachers are at one in their aim and work."

The parents' meeting will be held after their children have been taken to their new classes. It will consist of a short film strip on the underlying principles of the new curriculum, a brief account of the material to be used by each grade and a question period.

The meeting will last about 30 minutes. It will be held in the cathedral hall just after 10:40 a.m. between the family eucharist service and the mid-morning service.

Confirmation is planned for the spring of 1968.

TV Threat to Values Scholar Tells Synod

OTTAWA (CP) — Television was described as the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada Friday as a threat to the fundamental values of Canadian society.

Dr. R. F. Stackhouse, professor of the philosophy of religion and Christian ethics at Wycliffe College, University of Toronto, called on the church to do some negative as well as positive thinking on how television and other media can be used to communicate the gospel.

He said television with its concentration on violence, just and "hedonistic commercialization of life," is promoting a philosophy of life that contradicts what the gospel says about human existence.

"Television has been called a cultural wasteland—and most of the time it is," Prof. Stackhouse said. "Worse, it was a wasteland of spiritual weeds that threaten to choke fundamental values of our society."

He said "there is a need for us to think negatively about television because of the ironic fact that in Canada today television is the gospel's greatest opportunity and its greatest challenge."

Earlier Rt. Rev. G. P. Gower, Bishop of New Westminster, said Canadian churches of all denominations should co-ordinate their communications programs in the spirit of the ecumenical movement.

A resolution stressing the need for an ecumenical approach to communications was later approved by the synod.

"Let us open our doors so we can speak together with one voice," Bishop Gower told the more than 250 delegates.

The synod also approved a resolution asking the government to encourage the initiation of a research program to study the effects of mass communications on our society.

An amendment from Dr. Stackhouse that would have suggested the study examine the effects of television "on spiritual beliefs and moral values" was approved in the lower house of clergy and laymen by a narrow margin but was defeated by the bishops in the upper house.

BOTH NEEDED

Approval of both houses is required for a motion to pass.

Archdeacon Alfred Abraham of St. Paul's, Ottawa, also supported the resolution because getting the Christian message across "calls for co-operation."

However, the archdeacon said, there is "no substitute for individual witness in the church."

SAINTS SILENT

He said the church has not succeeded in telling its message because "we have produced a church of silent saints."

Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Bishop of Ottawa, made "a plea for honesty" as the synod, the church's highest legislative body, debated a resolution to streamline and expand its present communications program.

He said the proposed changes were not suggested to save money.

BE PREPARED

"Let's not fool ourselves," Bishop Reed said, "we will have to be prepared to raise our budget."

Archdeacon T. J. Matthews of Lennoxville, Que., called on the synod to give priority to "modern avenues of proclaiming the Gospel in new forms of communications."

"We get a lot of unsolicited comment," Therese Demers, treasurer and office manager, told me. "And most of it is good." She said reaction was negative in the first 10 days of the fair.

"Then we realized we were putting people through the pavilion too fast. We slowed down the pace and found then that they were getting the message. We had to double the seating capacity of the theatre."

Many Sponsors

Up to the first week in August, 750,000 people had seen the pavilion. Here are some of their comments: "This is a pavilion that makes you think."

"For the first time I see the church as not dragging its feet but in showing the way." "I really feel part of the church." "The designers have avoided past answers." "They have taken a bold and courageous form."

The pavilion is sponsored by Canadian Anglicans, Baptists, Greek-Orthodox, Lutherans, Presbyterians, Roman Catholics, Ukrainian Greek-Orthodox and United Church members and has cost, $1,300,000.

The pavilion is divided into three zones. There are panels of Church 101 Next Week

St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church in Esquimalt is 101 years old next week. Foundation stone was laid Aug. 30, 1866, and church was finished three months later and consecrated that Dec. 12. Photo taken in 1867 shows original church near present Dockyard gate. Church moved to present site in 1904 because blast of naval gunfire was hard on windows.

ness: How Can I Handle Them? At the evening service he will speak on Humility: What Can It Do for Anyone?

Christ Jesus is the title of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches. The responsive reading is from Isaiah and includes this verse: "And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord."

Pilot Project

Knights Go Out Into Community

A social action program which is a pilot project for all Knights of Columbus councils on the North American continent is being quietly carried on in B.C., says State Deputy Alan Ritz, 4201 Tynmial.

"We are moving out into the community to help out wherever we can, instead of working as groups of Knights," he said.

"We want the Knights of Columbus to stop looking at themselves, to stop pointing to what they as a group have accomplished."

Mr. Ritz said many councils

Dr. Carleton Whitehead of the Church of Religious Science in Monterey, Calif., will deliver his final talk in Victoria Truth Centre. He has been guest speaker during August. His topic at 11 a.m. is The Time of Your Life and at 7:30 p.m., For This Cause.

Rev. H. R. Whitmore will discuss the parable of the mustard seed in the 11 a.m. service in Garden City United Church. There is no service in Wilsdon Road United Church.

CONSECRATION HELD

Bishop Dean was named executive officer two years ago for a five-year term. His headquarters are in London, England.

The synod earlier met at Christ Church Cathedral for the consecration of Canon Guy Marshall of Toronto as Suffragan Bishop of Trinidad and Tobago.

Bishop Dean later called for abolition of the synod's upper house and criticized procedures he said were unrealistic.

REAL WORLD

"Let's live in the real world and not the Alice in Wonderland world," he urged the more than 250 synod delegates.

The synod has two houses. The upper house comprises the bishops and archbishops of the churches of 28 dioceses as well as retired bishops who are not engaged in secular work.

SESSIONS DIFFER

The sessions of the lower house and members are clergy and lay delegates — are open, but when the bishops meet alone, their deliberations are closed.

Bishop Dean deplored the practice of "sending messages" to the upper house — sometimes they were concerned with such weighty matters as the appointment of a timekeeper, now are working with handicapped children, and in Vancouver had worked for them alongside the Shriners.

"One problem we encounter is that if the Knights move into a field, people say that it's for Catholics, and move out."

"This just isn't so. We are working for everyone, and that is why we can do more good in concert with other clubs."

Mr. Ritz said district deputies will be meeting in Vancouver over the Labor Day weekend to formulate plans for the rest of the year.

Vancouver Ordination Held for Victorian

A special ordination service was held Sunday at the Canadian Memorial United Church in Vancouver for Rev. Richard Frank Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall, 355 Arnot.

Mr. Hall, a graduate of Union College Seminary, UBC, was educated here and spent 15 years in the B.C. forest service public relations department and 2½ years with the Credit Union League at Vancouver.

Rev. and Mrs. Hall and their three children will take up residence at Gravelburg, Sask., Sept. 1.

Gospel Run Concluding

The last of the 25th year of nine summer gospel services will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Cameron bandshell in Beacon Hill Park.

The Shantymen's Christian Association will take charge of the service and Rev. Percy Willis will deliver the gospel message.

Christian Pavilion at Expo Shows All Life as It Is

Story and Picture
By DON GAIN

Horses, lovers, babies, workers, nudes, pigs and pop singers. This is the Christian Pavilion at Expo, or part of it.

The pavilion, which has been paid for by 95 per cent of Christian churches in Canada, has been the subject of controversy ever since it opened.

An editor said it has set the church back 50 years. A priest said "God is not here." But these reactions don't tell the whole story, I found out on a recent visit.

Most of It Good

"We get a lot of unsolicited comment," Therese Demers, treasurer and office manager, told me. "And most of it is good." She said reaction was negative in the first 10 days of the fair.

photos showing life as it is, good and bad, vulgar and ordinary. One panel changes from a crowded house to a pleasant landscape with lovers and cows in a pasture and back to crowds again.

Through the atmosphere provided by the pictures booms the beat of a heart. An oscilloscope shows a normal heartbeat and a counter set at zero on April 28, when Expo opened, shows it has beaten 23,328,935 times (up to Aug. 8).

Poverty Photos

In the second zone, a short film is shown, entitled Man and His World. It deals with war and hatred and genocide and makes you squirm with its gruesome pictures of man's inhumanity to man. The theatre is dimly lit and the roof reaches its lowest point, generating a feeling of discomfort and depression.

An area beyond the theatre shows the world man creates. Here are photos of poverty, sickness, death, race differences.

The final zone is the largest of all and has a more cheerful atmosphere. Several photos selected from the first zone are interspersed with new ones, giving a positive and negative effect.

Sluts and vicious crowds are still there but so is a blowup photo of a madonna and child with the inscription, A Child Is Born.

There is a dove of peace. There are messages — "Why search for me among the dead? I am with you always." "He died for all that all might live, by this we know love." And that appears to be the message. In a world with little love, we find a source of love — Christ.

Bible Study Limited At Trinity

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto's Trinity College will abandon a 115-year-old tradition and do away with compulsory religious education for the 700 students enrolled in its arts and science course.

Rev. D. R. G. Owen, provost, said the Anglican church-supported college is trying to give students freedom in choosing subjects. Students have resented compulsory religious education. Since the college opened in 1852, students have been required to take from one to three hours of religious education weekly.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

One of the two men who turned This Hour Has Seven Days into a Canadian cause celebre 1 1/2 years ago will appear regularly on the still-untitled public affairs program at 10 p.m. Sundays on the CBC this coming season.

Patrick Watson, co-host of Seven Days, has been chosen by Rosa McLean, recently named executive producer of the key hour. McLean also was fired by the CBC, but that was almost a decade ago, and he has worked his way back with such Toronto-area successes as TBA.

Saturday Highlight
C-7:00 p.m.—It's a special called Do Blondes Have More Fun? It features Al Capp and lady thinkers Betty Friedman, Anita Loos and Marya Mannes. And you'll never guess its sponsor—8.
10:30—Just a CBC filler but the best thing today. The 1916 Chaplin film The Floorwalker—2.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint smudges, characteristic of old paper. The right edge of the page is dark, indicating it is part of a bound volume. There is no text or other markings on the page.

No Say for Owner-Electors

B.C. Forcing Sewer Action

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

New legislation to force municipalities throughout B.C. to install adequate sewage treatment facilities without seeking consent of owner-electors will be introduced at the next session, the government announced Friday.

Coupled with the announcement was a strong indication that new and equally tough air pollution controls are also on the government's legislative program for the session beginning late in January.

Greater Victoria is expected to be among the first, if not the very first, to feel the effects of the latest edict. Government spokesmen said here local municipalities could be required within two years to start construction of a new sewer system costing an estimated $23,000,000 between now and 1985.

In a joint announcement, Health Minister Wesley Black and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said the following steps will be taken in the campaign against water pollution:

● A bill is to go before the legislature next session giving the Pollution Control Board power to order municipalities to provide minimum levels of sewage treatment.

● Any municipality receiving such notice will be required to submit, within six months, engineering plans for sewage treatment.

● The municipality can be ordered to undertake the treatment project within 18 months of such plans being approved by the Pollution Control Board.

● Starting immediately, each municipality is to notify Mr. Campbell of the details of current methods of sewage treatment it uses, along with any current proposals for upgrading its present treatment methods.

At the same time, Mr. Black announced new regulations approved by the cabinet setting health and safety regulations for hotel and motel swimming pools and

'Probe Youth Corps'

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Friday the Company of Young Canadians should be investigated so that it does not become an agency for the propagation of Communism or Communist philosophy.

He said there are dedicated young men and women in the Company but that leftwingers with the benediction of the Communist party are infiltrating it.

"Surely Canadians don't have to pay taxes to expand the opportunities for Communists to bring about changes in society," he told reporters.

'HOLDS GUN'

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated his call for reconvening of Parliament to deal with the Great Lakes shipping strike by the Seafarers' International Union.

SIU President Leonard (Red) McLaughlin "holds a gun at the head of Canada," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker twitted Prime Minister Pearson for his phrase "I see nothing to be disturbed about" concerning the Paris announcement of increased French economic aid to Quebec.

TYPICAL ATTITUDE

He said "I am not disturbed" is the embodiment of the attitude of the Liberal government toward high taxation, uncontrolled expenditures, the sea-

Baby 'Weaned Away' From Heroin Habit

LONDON (UPI)—A London court was told Friday a four-month-old baby, the child of a convicted drug addict, was being "weaned away from heroin" by authorities.

"This is a shocking case," said a probation officer when Miss Rose Barker, 20, appeared in court on a charge of unlawfully possessing some 40 heroin tablets.

British Expecting Murder Campaign

HONG KONG (AP)—British colonial officials said today they expect a sustained assassination campaign will be waged by Communist Chinese terrorists who boasted they turned to death an anti-Communist radio comedian.

The comedian, whose specialty was ridiculing the Communists, died Friday after terrorists poured gasoline on him and set it afire.

The day also saw more bombs exploded in the Communist campaign against British rule in Hong Kong.

Lam Bun, 37, the comedian, died 30 hours after terrorists flagged down his car, doused him and his brother with gasoline and set them afire.

The brother, Lam Kong Hoi, 28, is near death.

Hong Kong newspapers front-paged the boast of the "Underground Traitor-Executing Onslaught Headquarters" that it had carried out the "severest punishment" against Lam for ridiculing Communist agitators and terrorists.

bring about the "birth of a perfect Jeffersonian democracy here, but the election is the freest this country has ever known."

● Australia announced it would send a four-man team to observe the election headed by Sir Allen Brown, Australian ambassador to Japan.

SPY CASE: SOLDIERS ACCUSED IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two U.S. Army sergeants have been accused of conspiring to hand over U.S. secrets to the Soviet Union, U.S. officials disclosed Friday night.

The two were identified as Sgt. Leonard J. Safford of Chillum, Md., and Sgt. Ulysses L. Harris of Neptune, N.J.

Charges announced by the U.S. defence department linked the two men with Nikolai F. Popov, listed as a first secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, and with Anatoly Tikhonovich Kireyev, identified by the state department as with the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

The state department said Popov left the U.S. Aug. 22 and Kireyev July 31. No reason was given by the Soviet embassy for their departure. Both had valid visas for return to the U.S. but the visas have been cancelled.

The Soviet government was told both men are not eligible to return.

Rockwell Assassinated

Ousted Nazi Held in Death

Suspect, left, victim share platform in '66

Power Struggle 'Cannibalistic'

BOSTON (UPI) — An insight into the power struggle between American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell and his accused assassin was disclosed Friday in a taped interview with Rockwell. (See also Page 3)

Gordon Hall, a Boston-based lecturer on extremist groups, taped the interview with Rockwell in September, 1963.

Hall asked Rockwell about John Patler, now accused in Rockwell's death but then a top aide who had recently accused his Nazi boss of being a "liberal" in a magazine Patler published called Kill.

Rockwell said of Patler: "A political guerrilla band is what we are. And our support is almost zero. We have to just live off the land."

"And under such conditions, the struggle for power becomes almost cannibalistic. And yet what happened is Patler rebelled against the leadership — he thought he could do it better."

"He went up to New York and tried and he fell on his face. And he has written me and he is most humble."

"That was in 1963, and hardly the end of the power struggle in Rockwell's guerrillas. At the time of Rockwell's assassination, Patler had been expelled from the party."

Rockwell said he was only a symbol for the party and that his own death would not affect the progress of the organization.

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — George Lincoln Rockwell, hate-peddling leader of the small but noisy American Nazi Party, was slain by a sniper Friday. Police arrested an ousted party official and charged him with murder.

Rockwell, whose principal hate targets were Negroes and Jews, was gunned down in his car outside a laundromat in a small shopping centre across the street from the party's headquarters in this Washington, D.C., suburb.

Within an hour, police arrested John Patler, 29, a former U.S. marine who until early this year was a Nazi captain—fourth-ranking party official.

$50,000 BAIL

He was jailed and bail set at $50,000, pending a court appearance Monday.

It was reported that Patler had been active in the party for about six years. After he and Rockwell quarrelled about undisclosed points in party policy this spring, this report said, Patler was kicked out of the party. Police Inspector Walter E. Bell said Patler left the party in January.

DIED INSTANTLY

Acquaintances said Patler is an artist who had done illustrations for the party's magazine. Police said he is married, unemployed and a student who "didn't say where he was studying."

Rockwell was hit in the head and chest by two bullets which pierced the windshield of his car. He apparently died instantly, his body toppling from the car's right door partly onto the parking lot.

LEFT CLOTHES

The shots were fired shortly before noon from a 15-foot roof some 35 feet from where the 49-year-old tall, dark, athletically built Rockwell sat, officials said. He had just left his dirty clothes at a coin-operated automatic laundry.

"I haven't done nothing—this is a nightmare," the arrested man shouted as police led him from the Arlington County Courthouse to the nearby police station for questioning.

MAN PICKED UP

A real estate man, J. W. Hancock, told reporters he heard two shots—then the sound of running footsteps across the roof of the centre, Rockwell's car, he said, continued several feet after the gunshots and struck a parked auto.

Several persons gave Arlington police descriptions of the man they said was the sniper. On the basis of those descriptions, Arlington policemen cruising in a squad car picked up a man less than a mile away within an hour of the shooting.

NAMED IKE TRAITOR

Rockwell's party's expressed policy was to deport Negroes to Africa, to liquidate Jews by sterilization and expropriation of their property and to hang traitors.

A native of Bloomington, Ill., Rockwell was divorced several years ago. He attended Brown University and was a U.S. Navy fighter plane pilot during the Second World War.

Police said there had been earlier attempts on his life.

Viet Voting Violations 'Could Lead to Blood'

SAIGON (UPI) — Two civilian presidential candidates warned Friday that if Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky's government does not stop alleged campaign violations they will stage demonstrations that could lead to bloodshed.

Ky replied that if there was any proof against "bad election officials" he would cut off their heads.

BEATEN UP

The renewed charges against Ky's government came as a candidate for the senate, which also will be elected during the Sept. 3 presidential balloting, was reported beaten up by three Vietnamese soldiers while he was campaigning in Quang Nam province.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, presidential candidate on the military ticket with Ky, announced that 50 military officers, including "some generals," will be tried on charges of inefficiency and corruption.

He said the announcement at this time was "only a coincidence" and had nothing to do with the election.

Other developments:

● U.S. Ambassador Ellis-Don Bunker imposed a curfew from 9 p.m. Sept. 2 until 4 a.m. Sept. 4 on all American civilians and servicemen in Saigon to limit the possibility of Viet Cong

Bombing Just Supplement, He Says

McNamara at Odds with Military?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary McNamara, defending the U.S. administration's selective bombing tactics against North Vietnam, said Friday he still is convinced the war must be won by ground troops in South Vietnam.

The final decision in this conflict will not come until we and our allies prove to North Vietnam she cannot win in the South," he said.

There is little reason to believe that anything short of a sustained and systematic pounding of the population centres would force the North Vietnamese into submission, McNamara said, adding that no one has suggested such drastic measures.

"The bombing of North Vietnam has always been considered a supplement to and not a substitution for an effective counter-insurgency campaign in South Vietnam." He contended that in the light of its limited objectives the bombing campaign has been successful, even though it has not halted completely the flow of Communist supplies and reinforcements from North Vietnam into South Vietnam.

His argument at a closed session of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, which marked no change in his previous position, failed to persuade subcommittee members who want the bombing tempo stepped up.

Senator Stuart Symington (Dem., Mo.) said that if McNamara is right then his top military leaders are wrong. The military chiefs have told the Senate group that recent increased bombing is hurting North Vietnam.

"If the position as presented by the secretary this morning is right, I believe the United States should get out of Vietnam at the earliest possible time, and on the best possible basis," Symington said, "because with his premises, there would appear no chance of a true success."

McNamara took issue with Symington's statement that the defence secretary is at odds with the military chiefs.

Flames Whip Woods

DUNCAN — A forest fire in the Riverbottom Road area about 600 yards north of the Cowichan River burned out of control Friday but was contained to three acres by 4 p.m. "I caught it just when it blew," said Mount Prevost B.C. Forest Service lookout Tom Gilmore.

He reported the smoke rising from timber at about 2:10 p.m. After that, the fight against the blaze which ate into under-dry forest was on.

A Canso from the flying firemen scooping water from Quamichan Lake near Duncan aided about 25 firefighters with four drops and four bulldozers, broke a fire break around the burning area.

Two tanker trucks supplied water for the crew.

A Duncan forest official said, "I think we have it pretty well under control."

"We shall keep about 25 men there overnight and probably will bring in a fresh crew in the morning."

"We hope we are able to start mopping up soon."

Foresters from MacMillan Bloedel were at the scene because company timberland is not far away from the scene. They said there was no more danger.

The company supplied another water truck later in the afternoon.

Harbors Need Money

CHEMANUS — The federal government may be willing to give some subsidies in a program to improve harbors for small boats.

Transport Department official T. C. How said the federal government wants to see smart, well-serviced harbors.

He was speaking at a public hearing which discussed Chemainus Harbor.

Mr. How said his department wants to see more revenue from users, and some services provided by the municipalities.

LACK STORAGE

In various bays, representatives from this area complained about lack of accommodation in Chemainus harbor.

Ed Mankel of Chemainus told Mr. How that although Chemainus harbor has 95 feet of docking space, boats are sometimes tied up two and three deep.

A breakwater would allow for many more boats to dock.

ANNUAL FEE

Mr. How agreed the present system of rates might be replaced by an annual docking fee, which would be paid once a year on the first call.

Mr. How said there are 200 harbors for small boats on the west coast.

The number of small craft amounts to 70,000.

He was told that during a six-week period this summer, a total of 463 boats called at Chemainus — 196 of which came from the U.S.

Hundreds of Children Get Hepatitis Shots

NANAIMO — Hepatitis in the Central Island area has not reached epidemic proportions, although it has surpassed last year's total already.

This year the total is 156 cases, as compared to last year's 117.

Dr. H. L. Simon of the health unit said Friday, the control of the disease was due to a terrific amount of work being done by health unit workers and nurses. He said "The nurses have given gamma globulin protective doses to several hundred children."

"This is a very good case where by donating to the Red Cross blood drive, we have actually helped ourselves."

He said the concentration of cases in the area has been in the North Cowichan municipal area in the past 12-month period.

The reason, he said, was that the rural area is mostly unsewered, and without water service, estimating 80 per cent of the houses to be without services.

"There were very few cases in the city of Duncan because there is a very good water and sewer service there."

Nanaimo area has had 48 cases but few actually within the city area.

The reason is water and sewer services, which he said are very good.

He felt incidence of the disease will be greatly reduced in the North Cowichan area, with the recent passage of the water bylaw and the installation of sewers.

"We do know there is a relation to poor water and sewer facilities," he concluded.

Motels Pose Problem

New Law Covers Swimming Pools

Mounting concern over hazards of unattended motel and hotel swimming pools has caused the provincial government to enact new health and safety regulations.

Health Minister Black Friday outlined new provisions which require the permission of the medical officer of health to operate, build or modify a public swimming pool.

The reason behind new regulations, said Mr. Black, is the influx of new pools and particularly those being built in conjunction with new hotels and motels. Regulations set minimum standards and existing pools have until Jan. 1, 1968, to comply.

The minister said in one commercially operated pool five persons, including three children, have lost their lives over the past four years.

Pools connected with apartment buildings are considered to be private therefore are not included in the regulations.

Penalties for breaking the regulations include closing down the pool and a fine of up to $100 or six months in jail.

Under the regulations pools must be designed by an architect or engineer to meet the new standards, all pools must be under close supervision of a competent attendant all the time they are in use; adequate lifesaving and first aid equipment must be on hand and health rules must be posted prominently.

These include notice of a compulsory soap shower before entering the pool and forbidding entrance to "all persons with open sores, bandages, head colds, discharging ears or noses or inflamed eyes..."

Parksville Welcomes Ontario

PARKSVILLE — This village has seen many big parties for people from the Prairies, but now someone has come up with an event for Ontario folks.

A reunion basket picnic for former residents of Fort William and Port Arthur is planned for Sunday at the community park.

The idea came from Mrs. Chaney Hall of Parksville, who comes from Fort William.

She has extended the invitation to include all residents of Ontario who are visiting here. "There is an increasing number of Ontario people coming to this area."

PORT McNEILL — When you're losing money, the workers are out of a job. That was the ruling in court, over a closure here.

An application for an injunction to protect the jobs of 39 mine-workers was dismissed by Mr. Justice James Macdonald of the B.C. Supreme Court. The Port McNeill local of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union claimed a lockout when the company shut down operations without notice Aug. 14.

Empire Development Company Ltd. said shutdown of the operation, four days after the union submitted demands for a new contract, was decided on because the company was losing money and its ore reserves were of low quality.

Mr. Justice Macdonald said the closure was the determination of a crisis which developed before any question arose as to the terms of the next collective agreement.

DUNCAN — Local farmer George Bertram Clayton Tyer, died at King's Daughters Hospital Friday. Born at Brandon, Man., he was 80. Funeral services will be held at First Funeral Chapel 3:15 p.m. Monday.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Fire Department officials are still investigating last Sunday's fire which destroyed a two-storey farmhouse in the Campbell River Indian Reserve. Two fire trucks went to the scene and found the dwelling, owned by Billy Roberts, engulfed in flames.

NANAIMO — A routine maintenance job cost a workman his life at Harnac Mill. John Fenton Humphrey, 44, Nanaimo, was killed when he halted a gang saw for repair. Logs suddenly came rolling down on him, and he was crushed to death.

NANAIMO — Thieves broke into two buildings overnight Tuesday and made off with an undetermined amount of drugs.

The drugs taken were not of the type in which thieves are usually interested — one of the largest quantities was Vitamin B-12. They forced the door of Nanaimo Pharmacy, and one of the doctor's windows in the Hall-Giovando Clinic, both on Albert Street.

COOMBS — The Coombs-Hilliers fire department answered a fire call to the old Greig house in Hilliers, a landmark in the district since 1910. Although unable to save the old log house, they were able to save a forestry crew in putting out the many spot fires which broke out.

The house was unoccupied, but two saddles and two bridles valued at $300, belonging to caretaker Frank Ovington were destroyed. Two horses in a nearby shed were released.

Attacks Athlete's Foot

Fungus responsible for athlete's foot readily soaks up TINACTIN, a new antifungal preparation. Absorption is usually complete. Even tiny traces are attacked, greatly minimizing chance of reinfection. Already proven highly successful, TINACTIN is non-stinging, odorless, non-irritating — rapidly soothes and relieves soreness, itching and irritation of athlete's foot. Now available as powder or liquid at all drug counters.

'Get Job Done First, Then Alter the Law'

PARKSVILLE — A strong plea for a regional college, regardless of financial arrangement with the provincial government, was made at a seminar here Friday.

"Get the job done first, let the young people get an educational door open," said B.C. School Trustees official Frank Beinder of Trail.

"Then work on changing the legislation," he added.

More than 100 persons heard him plea for a yes vote in the September 30 plebiscite.

BAD VIEW

He said it would do no good at all to deny education to young people, just because there is a negative attitude toward present legislation for regional college construction and operation.

The seminar was held at Island Hall. The area in the college district involves nine school districts north of the Malahat.

MARSH SHADOW

UBC's Dr. Leonard Marsh couldn't attend the meeting, but his thinking cast a long shadow over the panel.

For it was the Marsh Report which recommended the Vancouver Island regional college.

The site proposed is about six miles north of Nanaimo.

POCKET MONEY

"Technological courses should be anywhere from one month to two years and include nurses' aides and laboratory and forestry technicians," he said.

Dr. Downey added that one of the main reasons a regional college is built is financial, students can more easily attend in their own regions, rather than travelling to a distant university.

He said "We are not serving industry, we are serving the people who want to be educated."

Cost of the college is $11,120,000, of which one-third will be met by the province, one third by the federal government and the remainder by the districts.

Dr. Downey said that in the U.S., 65 per cent of university-educated people increased their lifetime earnings by $63,000 and investment in education by a country showed a 10 per cent return.

RUSSIAN

Andrew Soles, principal of Selkirk Regional College, said of the original 485 students, 90 were adults and one was a 72-year-old man who studied Russian.

Bert Wales, Vancouver City College, told the trustees: "You must know what you're promoting . . . if you're going to be any use at all you must realize that it isn't just going to be another university."

Fisher Championed Canadian Union

Union Backs Dismissal

PORT ALBERNI — Charges by Felix Fisher, a former employee of the Alupul Division of MacMillan Bloedel that he was wrongfully dismissed have been denied by both company and union officials.

A spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said the man had been dismissed on Aug. 3, but denied that charges against him had ever been changed, as alleged by Mr. Fisher.

"He was in the mill without permission and did create a disturbance on mill premises. This dismissal was the culmination of many things. Mr. Fisher had also been warned previously," the company official said.

The union standing committee heard all the charges and concluded the company was justified in its actions, he added.

Officials of the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, Local 592, said "Mr. Fisher was given lots of rope at meetings. We feel he was very fortunate to have been fired when he was warned previously, since there could have been no defence at that time."

DOESN'T BELONG

Informed that both company and union upheld his dismissal, Mr. Fisher claimed his dismissal was prompted by his defence of the Canadian union.

"I feel the Canadian union is a good union. I do not belong to it, I have always paid my dues and obeyed the rules of the International but I have spoken out in defence of the Canadian union," the 48-year-old welder said.

Asked if it was true that he had been previously fired from another pulp mill after union investigation had agreed with that company's decision to dismiss him, Mr. Fisher agreed that he had.

"But I was not hiding that fact," he declared. "I told them in the personnel office, and gave them permission to check on me."

"I was accepted, and my work and behavior were considered good until about a year ago when I openly expressed admiration for the Canadian union."

"It was the same thing in both Port Alberni and Campbell River."

HIDE FEELINGS

"These minor charges would have been dismissed if I would just support the International union verbally, whatever my true feelings might be."

Mr. Fisher said he was at one time a member of the executive of the International during his five years in Campbell River.

WRONG INTEREST

He also said he had a letter from a committee within the International union charging him with working against the interests of the International.

He said he had been given no time to prepare a defence against the charges, and that his dismissal and the union letter had both come within a few days of one another.

UNEMPLOYED

Company officials said that they had been unaware that the union was proceeding against Mr. Fisher on any matter when the decision to dismiss him was made.

Heat Will Linger Another 21 Days

Get set! The province is in for another three weeks of blistering hot weather . . . the weather that has dried out our forests, and sent walls of flame sweeping through the woods.

The forecast says there is no major change expected until the second week in September.

High humidity and low temperatures at night have helped in fighting the 322 fires but the hazard remains extreme. (See Story, Picture, Page 6).

FORESTS CLOSED

Recreational closures are in effect across the southern part of the province with most of the Vancouver forest district also closed to industrial operations.

The Vancouver district covers Vancouver Island and a large portion of the southwestern section of the province.

BETTER WAGES

A union leader said Friday he intends to press a claim of $3,000 for members of the International Woodworkers of America now on firefighting duties.

Walter Allen, president of the Port Alberni local of the IWA, said the amount is the difference between what firefighters are being paid and what he believes they should receive.

LOWER RATE

MacMillan Bloedel said its employees fighting the 9,000-acre Sproat Lake fire are working for the B.C. forestry service and will get the service's rate of $12.50 an hour.

The industry rate runs from a base of $2.97 an hour up to $3.53 for a crew boss, Mr. Allen said. The dispute is not affected by the fact that some of the men were out of work because of a company closure resulting from the high fire hazard he said.

A company spokesman said, "The forestry service called on us for men when the fire spread from Crown land to our logging operation."

"Our understanding is that while they are fighting the fire they are on the service payroll."

The Nelson district remains the hottest hit with 123 fires, 11 new ones reported Friday.

There were nearly 1,000 men with 57 bulldozers fighting the fires in the B.C. forestry service's fire line. In the B.C., there were more than 3,000 men on the fire line.

Ted Jones, information officer for the forest service, said last week firefighting costs amounted to $1,210,000, one of the most expensive weeks on record.

Fire guards have again been established around the 6,000-acre fire burning on Sentinel Mountain near Castlegar in south central B.C. and officials hoped that it had been contained. It has been burning for about three weeks.

In the Kamloops district, aircraft were used for the first time to battle the 25,000-acre fire at Magna Bay on the north side of Shuswap Lake.

LIGHTNING

Donny MacDonald, forester in charge of protection in the area, said 400 men and 31 bulldozers were holding the blaze. He reported all other fires in the district were under control but lightning was causing some trouble.

Cowichan Hears Regional Plan

DUNCAN — A strong pitch for regional districts was tossed to North Cowichan and Duncan officials by a provincial government official Friday.

W. K. Smith, director of finances in the municipal affairs department, spoke to representatives of the municipalities and the Citizens' Committee in a closed meeting.

He explained what services could be obtained through regional districts.

Mr. Smith described the similarity between the regional board and regional district for hospitals, and said there are advantages in having one board. He said the advantages include elimination of many difficulties in overlapping of services, and the competition for tax dollars, and the board would have to comply with the wishes of the people.

The group felt a regional board would be beneficial for a very large area, and asked Mr. Smith to arrange a meeting next month to work on a formation of such a regional district.

Members of Duncan and North Cowichan councils promised full co-operation on the sewage disposal problem.

The Citizens' Committee was formed several weeks ago following a second defeat of a sewer bylaw in the south of the North Cowichan municipality.

Bears Threaten

PORT ALBERNI — Angry black bears pose a threat to residents in outlying areas.

There have been many sightings of these bears here recently.

Conservation officer Dennis Haddleton has issued a warning to all parents.

expected to aggravate bears' already grouchy dispositions, Mr. Haddleton warned.

"Children must be warned not to molest the bears or to follow them into the woods," the conservation officer said.

Bears with cubs are particularly dangerous, and unfortunately, particularly appealing to youngsters who might not realize the danger they are in.

Anyone sighting a bear in the area should call the conservation officer at 723-5911 or the RCMP at 723-2424.

Fairground Buildings Rise in Fall

Rebuilding will start in Luxton fairgrounds early in the fall, fair secretary Howard Drummond said Thursday.

"Next year's fair will be just as big as this year's," he said.

Mr. Drummond said fair directors would meet officers of Metchemin Farmers' Institute early in September to make plans, and he expects rebuilding to start immediately after the meeting.

The institute owned the fairground buildings which were destroyed by fire last Saturday.

"The buildings which were burned up were built by volunteers in the first place, and I'm sure from the calls I've had that people will respond when we need volunteers again."

"I've had calls from outside the area offering assistance, as well as from the community," said Mr. Drummond.

Fire Chief Alan LeQueune said the blaze must have been caused by children playing.

"There is just no evidence of anything else," he said.

"We've followed up every scrap of information, and found nothing at all," said Mr. LeQueune.

Orphan Oscar Living Life of Riley

By JIM BRAHAN

Oscar the baby seal will have to vacate his fish pond home at 2888 Glenwood shortly after Labor Day.

For the past three weeks, the four-to-five-week-old flippered pet has been living the life of Riley in the goldfish pond while the former residents are sulking in a wash-tub.

His young owner, Maureen Madill, takes him daily to the Gorge for a swim, and the two spend hours playing tag and swimming side by side. Maureen's mother said Thursday.

While in the water, she explained, Oscar is kept on a long leash made from a water ski tow rope, just in case he decides to go too far afield and winds up in serious trouble.

The three-foot-long seal was found while the family was boating in Montague Harbor, Galiano Island.

She said the family waited for about an hour to see if its mother would show up, and when she didn't, they took him aboard their 33-foot cabin cruiser and brought him home.

He was fed milk every four hours for the first few days, but now is on solid food. The main diet is cat food.

"Now he's eating me out of house and home. He goes through a big tin of cat food like it's nothing," she said.

Pets are nothing new to the Madills. Oscar shares the family's affection with a dog named Patches, a kitten called Tiger, a rabbit who answers to Thumper, a five-inch turtle, a canary and assorted gold-fish.

The young seal, when not swimming with Maureen, enjoys playing with the dog and kitten, who manage to stay well out of his way at meal times, because his manners are not the best and he tries to eat everything in sight.

"I didn't realize how much seals like to be with people," Mr. Madill said, and added ruefully that they are very expensive things to keep. After Labor Day, his address will be the Undersea Gardens.

Fire Chief Seeing Red

Irate Langford Fire Chief Alan LeQueune said Thursday he will start laying charges against local people whose thoughtlessness causes fires.

"The crew was out this afternoon for three hours on three calls to fires caused by incinerators," he said.

"We were called out at midnight to another one—and I'm pretty grouchy when I'm called out at midnight to something that was unnecessary in the first place."

"Children play with matches, and it seems some people just never grow out of playing with fire," he said.

"It seems we've had a little dew at night, and people have needed an extra blanket on the bed, so now they think they can burn as if it was midwinter," said Chief LeQueune.

Greater Victoria

Chambers Plan Merger

A merger is planned of all chambers of commerce in the Greater Victoria district, and a resolution to put the plan into effect will be brought before the Victoria Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting, Sept. 14.

The name of the chamber is to be changed to the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, according to the proposed resolution, and will be made up of the chambers of Victoria, Esquimalt, Saanich and Sooke, and the Oak Bay Board of Trade.

ONE VOICE
The chambers will not lose their autonomy under the new setup, but will speak with one voice in matters which involve the whole region.

"It all started when the centennial train came to Victoria, and there wasn't enough time for everyone to see it," said chamber manager Earl Dickmoor Thursday.

"We were given no many days for a population of 60,000, but we have 175,000 in the whole district.

"We decided we should have some say as the Greater Victoria district."

Presidents of the outside chambers have been attending directors' meetings during past months, but if the resolution takes effect they will officially become directors.

MORE WEIGHT
"Perhaps if we get together we shall have more weight with such things as the needed improvement to the Pat Bay Highway, and in our submissions to the federal government."

"The Carter report," added Mr. Dickmoor.

Medals Going Back

A former member of the Canadian Corps of Commissioners, Harry Owen, signs letter to Queen protesting action of commandant A. C. Wurtele, who fired 51-year-old resident of 892 Craigflower. Mr. Owen is also returning his six campaign medals to Her Majesty, saying he feels "it is degrading to wear these medals in such an undemocratic place as Victoria." —(Kinsman)

North Saanich Given Parkland

The provincial government has turned over nearly 28 acres of land at the intersection of Patricia Bay Highway and John Road as a free Crown grant for the establishment of a North Saanich municipal park.

The cabinet order Thursday said the property was acquired by the highways department for reconstruction of the Patricia Bay Highway and now only needs a strip 50 feet wide on the main frontage and 33 feet wide on John.

It's up to the municipality to survey the land which is to be transferred for park use, the order said.

Progressive School Classes Full

Craigdarroch School, the progressive primary school founded by a group of parents a year ago, will begin its second term with a full enrolment of 30, said spokesman Dr. Charles Gregory on Thursday.

"We have begun a waiting list for 1968-69," said Dr. Gregory.

The school has changed its location. From 1075 Joan Crescent it is now on a three-quarter-acre site between Penitence and St. Charles, near Angus.
